MODIFIED PACT SANCTION GOAL OF PRESIDENT

Treaty Forces Will Seek, However, to Control Reservations.

RATIFICATION BY END OF NEXT WEEK IS AIM

Progress Made in Calling Absentee Senators to Hold Quorum.

ROBINSON, M'KELLAR, ODDIE MAKE TALKS

Arkansan Gives Six Reasons Why He Is in Favor of Acceptance.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Ratification with reservations now looms as the goal of the protreaty forces after Senator Watson, the Republican leader, and Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, conferred with President Hoover yesterday at the White House.

The administration's program will be to control whatever reservations are to be adopted, to accept a modification of the Norris reservation, and to concentrate all efforts toward ratification by the end of next week.

Distinct progress was made in rounding up absentee senators yesterday and providing for a quorum during the present week. Senator Watson estimated that an average of 60 will be on hand. Senators Gould, of Maine; Greene, of Vermont; Harrison, of Mississippi; Kean, of New Jersey, and Pine, of Oklahoma, responded yesterday to telegrams sent by Senator Watson.

Norris Inclined to Agree.

Senator Norris said he was willing to eliminate the preamble to his reservation stipulating that the United States shall not be bound by any secret agreements, nor understandings not in the text of the pact, when the treaty is ratified. The preamble has been regarded as an "insult" by some of Mr. Hoover's supporters. Senators Allen and Vandenberg brought intimations early yesterday that President Hoover would insist upon the elimination of the Norris reservation. But Senators Watson and Borah, after talking with the President, brought word that a suitable compromise would be acceptable to the administration.

There has been discussion of one reservation to include various reservations which have so far been discussed, but Senator Borah does not regard this procedure as practical. Mr. Borah is understood to favor the Norris reservation and to believe that the Senate will vote for its adoption. Elimination of the preamble would assure passage of the reservation by a wide margin.

A reservation concerning Article 21 of the treaty, which covers the so-called escalator clause, will also be dealt with, according to present indications. Senator Bingham, strong administration supporter, said yesterday that he regards such a reservation as essential for the protection of America's interests.

Treaty Carefully Analyzed.

Speeches by Senators Oddie, Robinson of Arkansas and McKellar featured yesterday's proceedings. Senator Oddie made a carefully-prepared technical analysis of the treaty and announced his conclusion that it jeopardized the national defense. The pact does not provide parity in sea power, he maintained, and America sacrifices her 5-3 ratio with Japan without any compensation, he added.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: In Massachusetts we are celebrating the three-hundredth anniversary of the granting of the first charter to the Old Bay Colony. That event had not only national but world significance. It was one of the early and potential beginnings of constitutional government. It started a new train of thought and action which has changed the whole foundation of human relationship. An area that was begun by an English document transplanted to this Commonwealth and developed by people who came from the ends of the earth to share in its responsibilities and its benefits will be commemorated by the presence of representatives of many States and nations all bearing testimony to their allegiance to the principle of liberty under the law, local self-government, and civil and religious freedom which Massachusetts has established and disseminated with so much power and success. To enumerate the inestimable blessings that it has conferred, the great names that it has produced, the glories that it has encompassed, would be to restate the record of modern civilization. Never before were the rights of man advanced so far in three centuries. It is a heritage that lays on all humanity the gravest responsibilities but endows them with the largest promise of future progress.

WATERPOWER POST REFUSED BY JADWIN

Services as Chairman are Not Available, Says War Department.

FACED FIGHT IN SENATE

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover had to begin over again yesterday in his organization of the newly authorized Federal Power Commission because of the announcement that Lieut. Gen. Jadwin would not accept the chairmanship.

The White House announced some time ago that Gen. Jadwin, former chief of engineers, would be chairman. The announcement that he would not accept came from the War Department in a brief statement that "his services would be unavailable."

There were reports that he had received such an attractive private offer that he could not remain longer in the public service. The belief was also entertained in some quarters that he had decided he did not want to run the gantlet of Senate confirmation.

A formidable fight was developing against him by those senators who are advocating government ownership of waterpower resources and who entertained the belief that Gen. Jadwin's public utterances and past activities associated him too closely with the private ownership view. Criticism was widespread in this quarter at the time it was announced the general would be appointed.

It may very well be that the general, a rather outspoken man, decided that the post was not worth the fight that would have to be made to get it, especially with attractive private offers facing him.

There was some surprise, too, when it became known several weeks ago that Mr. Hoover had selected him for the power commission chairmanship, not that the President is not believed to have a high regard for his engineering ability, but back in the days when there was speculation as to whether he might not be retained as chief of engineers in order to complete his Mississippi flood relief work and carry out Mr. Hoover's waterways program any inquiries on the subject were met with a rather decided rebuff in the Hoover camp.

The impression was gained at the time, maybe wrongly, that while Mr. Hoover did not know who would do this work, he had decided that it would not be Gen. Jadwin.

His selection as chairman of the Power Commission was the only one that had been announced. The President has under consideration, how-

DAVIS AID BELIEVED LABOR POST CHOICE

TWO OTHERS MENTIONED

President Hoover, it is understood, has practically decided to appoint Robe Carl White, of Indiana, now Assistant Secretary of Labor, as Acting Secretary to succeed James J. Davis, to serve at least until after the November election. Mr. Davis is expected to resign soon after Labor Day.

The President's difficulties in selecting a new Secretary of Labor are the same as those which induced him to carry Mr. Davis over from the Coolidge Cabinet; namely, inability to find a man who would be acceptable to the various factions of organized labor.

Mr. White's political history is that he was postmaster at Muncie, Ind., from 1907 to 1912; that he lost the postmastership when he listened to the trumpeting of the Bull Moose in 1912, and that he came back to the party fold and became Republican chairman for Delaware County in 1918. In 1922 President Harding named him chairman of the board of review in the Bureau of Immigration, and President Coolidge in 1924 made him Assistant Secretary. It is believed that Mr. White would have the indorsement of most of the Indiana Republican delegation in Congress.

Another potential candidate, who came very near to getting the appointment when the Hoover administration came in, is W. N. Doak, economist for the Railroad Brotherhoods. The American Federation of Labor has regarded the Department of Labor as something in the nature of its own child. The brotherhoods, on the other hand, have ignored the department for the most part, even to insisting upon the creation of separate governmental machinery—as provided by the Watson-Parker act—to deal with railroad labor disputes. Hence the federation opposes the naming of a brotherhood man as Secretary.

Still another possibility is Miss Grace Abbott, now chief of the Childrens Bureau, whose appointment is favored by numerous women's labor organizations.

SKIDDING NATS LOSE AGAIN TO TIGERS, 8 TO 4

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Navin Field, Detroit, Mich., July 14. The Nationals were beaten almost before they started today, finally losing out, 8 to 4, when the Tigers suddenly solved Irving Hadley for six hits and six runs in the first two innings and made the going easy for the veteran George Uhle over the balance of the route.

The effect of the Nats' third defeat of the four games played here was the loss of another full game in the first-place fight, the Athletics scoring an eleven-inning victory at St. Louis and increasing their lead to two games.

Johnson's men started by scoring a run in the opening inning, and they did so in such an impressive fashion that it looked as though Uhle was in for a rough afternoon. He came back following this baby cyclone, however, and granted but five hits over the balance of the route, fanning eight, and simply coasting in, despite the fact that the Nats scored twice in the sixth and made most threatening gestures in the ninth, thanks to three passes, one of which forced a runner past the check-in station. All told, the Nats cracked out but eight hits, two each being credited to Rice, West and Cronin.

Brown in Good Form.

After Lloyd Brown had relieved Hadley, starting the third, it was a real game, although the Nats' southpaw saw the Bengals roll up two runs at his expense in the seventh. But for this frame, however, he performed well and never was in serious trouble except for a minor threat in the eighth.

It was a great day for Dale Alexander, the Tigers' massive first sacker. He easily stole the show, cracking out four safeties in as many times up, including a double, and driving home five runs. His two-base shot in the second just about sewed up the game for the Harrismen, for it cleared the bases which were fully populated at the time. Uhle helped along his

DEATH VERDICT GIVEN THREE IN YORK SHOOTING

Counsel May Ask New Trials Before Justice Passes Sentence.

DEFENDANTS CALM UPON HEARING FATE

ACCUSED HAD SIDED AGAINST EACH OTHER

Extreme Penalty Demanded on Ground All Conspired in April Murder.

Three Negroes accused of killing Prohibition Agent Lamar Watson York in Brooks Court on the morning of April 12 were convicted of murder in the first degree by a Criminal Division, No. 1, jury late yesterday. The verdict automatically fixes the death penalty, but attorneys for John Logan, John Borum and Milton Guy are expected to file motions for new trials before Justice Jesse C. Adkins pronounces sentence.

The defendants showed no signs of emotion as the jurors filed into their box after a two-and-one-half-hour debate. The verdict did not indicate which of the defendants fired the fatal shot.

Each Accused Other.

During the trial, which opened last Monday, the Negroes were aligned against themselves as well as the Government. Logan and Guy accusing Borum of shooting York, and Borum in turn accusing Guy. Most of the testimony in the case centered in written statements which the defendants are said to have given Lieut. Edward Kelly, of the police homicide squad, shortly after their arrest.

These statements, admitted in evidence over protests of defense counsel, identified each of the defendants as an eye witness to the shooting, which is said to have followed unsuccessful efforts at bribing the officer to release a liquor-laden automobile which he had locked and put the key in his pocket.

Death Penalty Demanded.

In closing arguments yesterday, Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, heading the prosecution, demanded the death penalty for all three defendants on the ground that regardless of who fired the shot, the others had conspired in the murder. Defense counsel based their individual pleas on the theory that mere presence at the scene of a crime is insufficient to convict.

Borum was defended by P. P. Richardson, colored attorney, while Bertrand Emerson, jr., appeared for Guy. Attorneys James O'Shea and John H. Burnett represented Logan.

Friend Collapses Trying to Lead Rescuers to Crash Scene.

Bennington, Vt., July 14 (A.P.).—Frank Goldsborough, daring 19-year-old avaitor who recently established a junior transcontinental record, lay pinned in the wreckage of his airplane somewhere in the woods west of here tonight while a posse was trying to find him.

A large group of men with a doctor and a nurse searched through the woods for the plane, with Donald Mockler, Goldsborough's companion, attempting to retrace his steps through the forest. Mockler was with Goldsborough when the plane struck a tree top while flying in a fog. Part of the plane stayed in the tree while Goldsborough was pinned in the cockpit as it fell to the ground.

After trying to extricate Goldsborough, who was still alive, Mockler

JEALOUSY THOUGHT MOTIVE FOR HIS ACT

Three Notes Are Left in Which His Affection Is Confessed.

IN ANOTHER HE SAYS HE IS WHOLLY SANE

Hastily Made Will Bequeaths Object of His Regard Sum of $1,000.

Leaving three notes in which he confessed his love for a 14-year-old girl, Ross Golden, 29-year-old World War veteran, shot the girl, Mary Raff, wounded his sister, Mrs. Lula Mills, and then killed himself at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Mills home at B street near Eleventh street northeast.

Golden, police learned, summoned the girl to his bedroom after lunch. A few minutes later, Mrs. Mills heard a violent argument, a scream, and finally a shot. She ran upstairs and met Golden at the door, she told police. Golden attempted to push her outside, and when Mrs. Mills resisted, fired a shot from his pistol, which struck the woman in the left breast.

Two Bullets Strike Girl.

Two bullets were fired at the girl, one striking her in the face and the other in the chest. The child was reported to be sinking rapidly at Casualty Hospital last night. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Joseph Raff, of Ninth street near I street northeast, and a student at Stuart Junior High School, where she made high marks last year in the eighth-A grade.

The child had been living at the Mills home since school closed early in June. Both Golden and Mrs. Mills had known the Raff family for many years. Mary had always called Mrs. Mills "Aunt Lule," although Mrs. Mills was not an actual aunt, Mrs. Raff said. Golden had known the girl since she was a baby.

Mr. and Mrs. Raff said last night that they were unaware of any love affair between their daughter and Golden. The parents described Mary as a normal girl with golden hair, blue eyes and with a dimple in her cheek, loving her fun just as much as any other girl of her age.

Three Notes Left.

The three hastily scribbled notes left by Golden were found on the dressing table of his bedroom where the triple shooting took place. One was addressed to his sister, but no designations were given on the other two. The one to his sister said:

"Oh, Sister Lula:

"Please help me, forgive my bad feeling. If mother dear was only living she would tell me what to do. Please bury me in some grave with Mary when I die. I love her with all my heart, soul and mind and thought. God knows I do."

"I am going to do this for God's sake," another note ran.

"Everybody please forgive me. I am very much sane. Don't think I was mad."

The third note said: "If I could only find out what turned her against me. I now hate her. She wouldn't give me satisfaction to know. Please bury her out of my compensation money."

Leaves Hastily Made Will.

Golden also left a hastily made will in which he bequeathed $1,000 to the girl he shot and $2,000 each to two brothers and two sisters who survive him. Whether he has an estate aggregating this much or whether he intended the sums to come from his veteran's compensation had not been

HYDROGEN DOUBLES GASOLINE OUTPUT

Standard Oil and Related Firms to Make Own Gas by New Process.

CRUDE MATERIAL USED

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and sixteen companies associated with it in the use of a process by which gasoline production can be doubled will produce the hydrogen for the process in their own refineries as a by-product, it was announced today.

Frank A. Howard, vice president of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, said the hydrogen would be taken from coal gas, natural gas or refinery gas, depending on which by-product is most available at the individual refinery. In the past commercial hydrogen has been almost prohibitively expensive.

The process by which the production of approximately twice the amount of gasoline from a given amount of raw oil is to be accomplished, was explained today by Edward F. Chandler, New York engineer and chemical expert. It begins on crude, he said, where the present "cracking" process stops.

"By hydrogenation it is possible," Chandler said, "actually to manufacture gasoline from heavy oils which

Reads Long Statement to Senate Committee on Her $319,786 Fund.

HITS PATRONAGE PLAN

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Ruth Hanna McCormick, the first woman ever to be nominated to the United States Senate, told the Senate campaign funds investigation committee today that, if what she termed "the patronage machine system" were removed from senatorial primaries, one of the main causes of large campaign expenses would be removed.

Her comment was part of a 7,000-word prepared statement which she read at the opening of the inquiry into her expenditures in defeating Senator Charles S. Deneen for the Republican nomination last April.

Defending the expenditure of $252,572 of her own money and the spending of $67,214 by her friends in her behalf, Mrs. McCormick interpolated the observation that she was "willing to believe" that her opponents' campaign cost twice as much.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the committee, asked Mrs. McCormick if she believed that charge could be substantiated by evidence, and she replied that "it will be substantiated if your inquiry reaches down into the precinct organizations." At the request of the senator,

Dry Body and Cannon Must Quit Capitol Hill

Improvement Program Dooms Bliss Building, Occupied by Antisaloon Body and Temperance Board of Methodist Church South.

The Antisaloon League of America soon will have to begin looking around for a new Washington headquarters. So, too, will Bishop James Cannon's organization—the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The two now are located in the Bliss Building, a four-story, red brick structure on the corner of B street and Arthur place, across the street from the Capitol Grounds.

This building, together with the Driscoll Hotel, which adjoins it, must come down to make way for the extension of the Capitol Grounds, a program which calls for stretching the grounds all the way to Union Station at a point farther north.

David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, said yesterday that the owners of the property have been invited to submit offers of sale on July 25. If they refuse to sell at a figure within 30 per cent of the assessed value the Government will resort to condemnation proceedings.

A vast amount of prohibition history has been written in the Bliss Building. The Antisaloon League has had its headquarters there for 20 years.

From an office on the third floor the late Wayne B. Wheeler directed the fight that finally culminated in the adoption of the eighteenth amendment and the passage of the Volstead Act. Whatever part Dr. Wheeler played in the writing of the amendment and the enforcement act he played it there at an old-fashioned desk that still is used by his successor, Dr. Scott McBride.

From this office, the leaders of the Antisaloon League have kept their eyes on Congress, pushing dry legislation and keeping tab on the members. From here, too, they directed the fight for Herbert Hoover and against Alfred E. Smith.

The proximity of the league's headquarters to the Capitol has always been an irritant to the wets, who have cited it as an example of the way in which the league was "running the country."

O. G. Christgau, assistant to Dr. McBride, said yesterday that the league had made no plans for moving. He said he had heard that the Bliss estate was going to erect a new office building on the square occupied by the old Census Office, but this could not be verified yesterday.

Dr. E. L. Crawford, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Social Service, said that, so far as he knew, Bishop Cannon had not yet given the moving problem any thought.

Fire Kills Woman, 74; Ran Back After Rescue

Nashville, Tenn., July 14 (A.P.).—Returning to her burning home in an effort to save some of her personal belongings, Mrs. W. D. Buchanan, 74, was burned to death today. Her 78-year-old husband had led Mrs. Buchanan safely to the front door, but, because of his deafness, did not know she returned to the blazing house. He fainted when told of his wife's death.

Mr. Buchanan had been ill, and the fire was believed to have resulted from explosion of a lamp that was kept burning at night.

Firemen Make Run to Find Fatal Explosion Fake Call

Apparatus Dashes Up to Address Given Only to Discover Newly Married Pair on Porch; Message Is Traced and Arrest Expected.

Wedding bells became fire bells last night for James T. Gallahorn, newly wedded teacher of the Jefferson Junior High School, when a practical joker, on whom police believe they will have the well-known last laugh, sent firemen, policemen and the fire rescue squad, not to mention the ambulances, to a pseudo gasoline explosion that had wiped out two lives and was burning down a house.

Mr. Gallahorn, with his bride of less than a month, was sitting on the front porch of his father's home at 139 E street southeast last night, when the quiet of the evening was broken by oncoming fire apparatus and other vehicles.

The firemen stopped in front of Mr. Gallahorn's home, dashed up the steps, and inquired anxiously about "the fire." In a few minutes they left, vowing vengeance against the perpetrator of the call. Whoever sent in the alarm stated that two people had been burned to death in a gasoline explosion and that a house was on fire.

The telephone call has been traced, police said, to a house on Massachusetts avenue northeast near Tenth street. An arrest is expected. Because of the frequency of such calls lately police are determined to prosecute to the limit if they lay hands on the joker.

Mr. Gallahorn lives at 429 Jefferson street northwest.

Boy Sits 100 Hours in Tree As Others Assault Record

Middle Western Endurance Squatters Bask Proudly Above Awed Companions Who Act as Refuelers; One Falls Out, But Begins Anew.

Kansas City, Mo., July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—At 8 a. m. today Jack Richards, 14, completed his 100th hour aloft in a tree in his backyard to further establish his hold on the record as the world's champion tree-sitter.

Jack had prepared himself for any kind of weather and predicts it will be weeks before he comes down, but opposition has developed in the Richards family and it may be Jack will descend before many more hours. His father said:

"If nothing else serves to get him down out of that tree, the old man will try his hand at it."

Billy Keapney, 10, runner-up in the contest, was but four hours behind Jack's record and announced his intention to stick it out.

Chicago, July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Sitting for more than 40 hours in a tree in the back yard of the Kirkpatrick home, Oak Park, Truman Kirkpatrick, 16, and Jack Harris, 10, are out after the endurance tree-sitting record.

Jealousy, leading to the taking of his own life and the probable fatal wounding of the girl, is reported to have been spurred by Mary's persistent reference to a man she met at a nearby beach recently. Mrs. Mills told police that she heard the two arguing about this prior to the tragedy.

Several persons who live near the house where the attempted murder and suicide were committed criticized Ninth Precinct police last night for failing to respond to a complaint that was sent to the precinct regarding a disturbance at Mrs. Mills' home just before the shooting occurred. One woman told a Post reported that she called the Ninth Precinct Station when loud screams were heard at the house and two children came from the house screaming loudly.

Says Complaint Was Ignored.

This woman said that she called the Ninth Precinct Station and told them that someone was apparently "beating" the children. She said that the man who answered the phone at the Ninth Precinct Station ignored the complaint.

A man who said that he telephoned the Ninth Precinct Station after the shooting occurred criticized the police for the time they took reaching the scene.

"I could have driven to the precinct and back twice in the period between the call and the time they arrived," this man said.

Nith Precinct police said that they reached the house as quickly as possible after learning that a shooting had taken place. The wounded girl was taken to the hospital in a meat truck, it was learned.

Fingerprint Mark As Signature Seen

Expert in Radio Speech Says Method to Be Used on Important Papers.

The time is near when persons signing important documents will also be required to attach their fingerprints, Christopher C. Bennett, fingerprint expert of the War Department, said in an address broadcast over the network of the National Broadcasting Co. through Station WRC last night.

"Every citizen of the United States should be fingerprinted," Mr. Bennett declared. "Objection to obligatory fingerprinting of the people is voiced because of the difficulty in establishing a workable system. But this objection is cast aside when you consider the ease with which the Government obtained in 1917 an exhaustive record of every male in the United States subject to military service.

"The need for universal fingerprinting is becoming more and more evident daily. The uses to which this method of fixing and safeguarding an identity are put are almost beyond belief. In almost every walk of life use may be found for this important means of identification."

Pair at Workhouse Negotiates Escape

Men Conceal Themselves in Supply Room Till Search Ceases.

Concealing themselves in a clothing supply room at the District Workhouse until search for them had slackened, two men yesterday made their escape from the institution.

The men are Edwin J. Schwartz, 23 years old, who lived at 2033 Nichols avenue southeast, serving eighteen months for housebreaking and larceny, and Frederick Boyd, 19 years old, of Baltimore, serving a sentence of one year for joy riding. Each of them had nearly a year to serve, Boyd having been in only since April.

Absence of the two prisoners was discovered Sunday afternoon and bloodhounds were brought to try to pick up the trail. Search was given up at nightfall. Early yesterday morning a guard discovered that locks had been broken on the door of the supply room and evidence was found that the men had secreted themselves there until a way of escape was clear.

PHILIP IS APPOINTED U. S. ENVOY TO OSLO

AIDED STARVING IN WAR

Appointment by President Hoover of Hoffman Philip, of Washington, as Minister to Norway was announced by the White House yesterday.

Mr. Philip will not assume active duties for at least a month, it was explained, as Lauritz Swenson, the present minister, will remain in Norway temporarily to participate in various anniversary celebrations planned at Oslo.

Selection of Mr. Philip, who has had an extensive and brilliant career in the diplomatic service, was made because of his wide experience and knowledge of international affairs. From 1925 until 1928 he was Minister to Persia, and since his resignation he has resided here.

Born in Washington on July 13, 1872, Mr. Philip was educated here and later at Lawrenceville Academy in New Jersey and at Magdalene College of the University of Cambridge. He also is a graduate of the George Washington University Law School, then known as Columbian University Law School.

He was appointed to the Mixed Claims Commission at Casa Blanca in 1908, and in the same year was made minister resident and consul general at Abyssinia. He was secretary at the embassies at Rio de Janiero in 1909 and 1910 and at Constantinople from 1910 to 1912, when he returned to Washington to serve as chief of the division of near eastern affairs of the Department of State.

Returning shortly thereafter to Turkey, Mr. Philip was awarded the Red Cross Balkan War Medal for his work at San Stefano and Constantinople in 1912 and 1913, and in 1914 he became a volunteer aid to the American Ambassador at Paris. In 1916 he went again to Constantinople as councilor of the American Embassy, later becoming charge d'affaires.

Delivery of relief supplies by sea to starving Syrians was intrusted by the Secretary of State to Mr. Philip in 1916, and in August, 1917, he was appointed Minister to Colombia, in which post he distinguished himself by concluding successfully an exchange of treaty ratification.

In 1922 he was appointed Minister to Uruguay, in which post he served as special ambassador at the Uruguayan presidential nomination in 1923. While serving as Minister to Persia, which appointment he received in 1925, Mr. Philip acted as special representative of President Coolidge at the coronation of the Shah of Persia on April 25, 1926.

Barring of Woman From Home Asked

Husband, 69, Tells Court She Has Made Him Nervous Wreck.

Charging his second wife, Rose H. Burroughs, with making him a "nervous wreck, unable to eat or sleep regularly," William A. Burroughs 69 years old, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to bar his wife from his home, which he says she obtained title to through "false statements and misrepresentations." The petitioner explained that none of his seven grown children resides at his home on Maryland avenue northeast, which he has occupied with his 44-year-old wife and her 15-year-old daughter by a former marriage since January, 1927.

Sale of the property and division of the proceeds were also asked in the petition, filed through Attorney Martin F. Bischoff. The plaintiff further alleges that his wife refuses to "allow him to touch her in any way, and required him to occupy a separate portion of his home." She refuses to leave the house, he asserts, and causes him great mental suffering by constant nagging.

He was induced to change the title to his home, the husband alleges, through "false promises."

Hoover Cables France Bastille Day Greetings

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover cabled to President Doumergue of France his greetings on the occasion of the anniversary yesterday of the fall of the bastille.

GRAND JURY TO SIFT CHICAGO ALLIANCES

Will Probably Call St. Louis Reporter to Tell of Gangs and Newspaper Men.

BURKE HUNT SET BACK

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—The county grand jury determined today to shoulder the burden of sifting the truth from the rising pyramid of rumor hinting at alliances of gangsters, politicians and newspapermen. One of its first acts was expected to be the summoning of Harry T. Brundidge, St. Louis Star reporter, whose correspondence to his newspaper has intimated that Alfred Lingle, the slain Tribune reporter, was not the only Chicago newspaperman using his position for personal gain through underworld affiliations.

The active intervention of the grand jury was begun at the suggestion of Denis J. Normoyle, chief justice of the Criminal Court.

"I deem it my duty to suggest," Judge Normoyle told the jurors, "that you call such witness as you want to hear, irrespective of whether they may be advised by the State attorney's office before they come to you."

Will Answer Summons.

The calling of Brundidge hitherto had reached an impasse, with State Attorney John A. Swanson refusing to introduce him to the grand jury without first hearing his story and Brundidge declining to submit to examination by the prosecutor. The St. Louis Star agreed today to produce Brundidge upon "proper request" by the grand jury.

Immediately after receiving the advice of Chief Justice Normoyle, the grand jury called for Swanson. After the conference the jurors resumed their deliberations behind closed doors, but the State's attorney said he had promised not to interfere with any effort to summon Brundidge.

The intensive search for Fred Burke, fugitive killer, went on today but suffered a setback in the examination of William A. Smith, at whose Newaygo, Mich., cottage Burke was thought to have been a guest. Brought to Chicago with his wife today, Smith convinced the detectives he himself had been mistaken for Burke.

Bore Killer's License Plates.

The incident, however, was confused by the fact that the automobile found at the Newaygo cottage bore the license plates seen on the car in which the killer of Thomas Bonner escaped from Chicago last Thursday night. Bonner, a minor racketeer, is believed to have been slain because he tried to trap Burke and win the $101,000 reward offered for his capture. Burke is wanted for the St. Valentine's Day massacre here 17 months ago, for the killing of a St. Joseph, Mich., policeman, and a variety of shootings and bank robberies.

Chief of Detectives John W. Norton took Smith to the Bonner home late today, but Mrs. Bonner is understood to have said he was not the slayer of her husband.

"I know it was Fred Burke who killed my husband," a local paper quotes her as saying. "My husband knew Burke for many years. They worked together for the Panhandle Railroad many years ago, and then when Tom had a saloon Burke was one of his patrons. I saw Burke many times and recognized him the night he came to our house and killed my husband.'

Brundidge Ready to Return.

Havana, July 14 (A.P.).—Harry T. Brundidge, St. Louis reporter, who has been asked to tell what he knows of the circumstances surrounding the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago newspaperman, today announced he would return immediately to the United States to testify before the Cook County grand jury.

Brundidge, whose work in conducting exposes of rackets and other activities of criminals has brought him renown, arrived here yesterday after a conference with Al "Scarface" Capone in Miami, Fla.

The St. Louis Star had refused to permit the questioning of Brundidge by State's Attorney John A. Swanson but it announced it was ready to send Brundidge to Chicago should the matter be placed in the hands of the grand jury.

Calhoun Held in Auto Death of S. J. Eisenberg

A coroner's jury yesterday investigating the death of Samuel J. Eisenberg, 29 years old, of 410 Gallatin street northwest, held Frederick William Calhoun for action of the grand jury. Calhoun is said to have driven the car which struck Eisenberg late Saturday, causing his death a few hours later.

It was said by witnesses that Eisenberg was thrown 25 feet by Calhoun's car, which struck the injured man at Gallatin street and Georgia avenue northwest and sped on without stopping. Calhoun is 22 years old and lives on Keefer place near Sixth street northwest.

Two Minor Relief Bills Await Hoover Signature

(Associated Press.)

With but today remaining in which to sign bills passed at the last session of Congress, President Hoover has only two measures awaiting action. Both are minor personal relief proposals.

PROTESTS ON FARM BOARD GO TO HOOVER

EDITOR RAPS M'KELVIE

The controversy between the Federal Farm Board and Kansas officials, producers and certain editors of the Middle West is expected to wax warm this week. Protests against assertions of Alexander Legge, chairman, and Samuel R. McKelvie, representative of wheat growers on the board, are being sent to the White House.

Robert E. Sterling, editor of the Northwestern Miller, published at Kansas City., Mo., charged Mr. McKelvie with a "ridiculously and palpably untrue" statement because he said: "It makes no difference in the price of bread whether the farmer received a dollar or a dollar and a half per bushel for his wheat." Mr. Sterling declared that what Mr. McKelvie said was probably "willful misstatement of fact."

Mr. McKelvie replied to Mr. Sterling in a sharp letter just made public today. He declared that a loaf of bread continues at the same price, regardless of the market price of wheat. He pointed out that Mr. Sterling admitted that bread might continue at the higher price long after wheat has declined.

"That, indeed, is what does happen and it is what I was talking about," said he. "The reasons you give for this are not conclusive. The miller hedges his purchases of wheat and bases his purchases of wheat and sales of flour thereon.

"My query goes to the consumer: What is he paying for bread today, compared with a year ago? It is up to the consumer to give that answer. I am not interested in averages or trends or prospects, but I am interested in the actual facts as they may be given by the millions of people in this country who consume bread."

Mr. McKelvie, like C. B. Denman, representating live-stock interests on the Farm Board, believes that the consumer should get some of the benefits from the lower prices for farm products.

In his reply to Mr. Sterling, Mr. McKelvie said that the price to the consumer of bread is too high, and the producer of wheat too low.

Hoover Opposes Buying Of More Wheat by U. S.

President Hoover is opposed to the plan of Senator Capper for the Federal Farm Board to buy 100,000,000 bushels of wheat to boost the price. It was explained at the White House yesterday that the board already has 60,000,000 bushels.

The President will leave the wheat situation to the Farm Board, but it was explained by administration spokesmen that there is very little the President or the Farm Board can do if he or it desired to act.

Divorce Given Wife Of Man Girl Sued

Mrs. Davis, Whose Mate Faced Singer's Suit, Seals Papers.

Reno, Nev., July 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Henrietta R. Davis received a divorce here today from Charles T. Davis, recently brought into the limelight in Los Angeles when Cano Morris, chorus girl, filed a suit against him for breach of promise. Davis served a term in Dannemora Prison in New York for slaying a Brooklyn detective.

Mrs. Davis' divorce papers were ordered sealed by the court at her request. She explained she had suffered sufficient embarrassment and humiliation. It was indicated, however, that the complaint set forth a form of cruelty covered by the Navada statutes which was sufficient to give her a decree. Davis did not contest the action, but was represented by counsel.

Davis was made defendant a month ago in the breach of promise action in Los Angeles. The Morris girl asked $200,000. This action, according to word received here, has been settled out of court. There was no mention of this suit in the divorce action, it was said by Mrs. Davis' attorney.

Alleged Slayer Held For Grand Jury Action

Condee Harris, colored, 36 years old, of Vermont avenue near R street, was ordered held for the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the fatal shooting early Saturday morning of Dennis Collier, colored, 26 years old, of 411 L street.

Harris, who fled after shooting Collier in an argument over a girl, was captured after a gun battle by policemen of the Second Precinct. Collier, at the time he was shot, was awaiting sentence on several traffic charges. When arrested, Harris told the arresting officer that he was "the baddest man south of New York."

MGR. JAMES H. RYAN.

POPE WARNS U. S. OF RADICAL PERILS

LETTER ALLAYS FEARS

Vatican City, July 14 (A.P.).—The Pope today solemnly warned the United States to "beware lest Bolshevism spread in America at this moment of financial depression and unemployment."

The warning was conveyed at a private audience to Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the National Catholic University, Washington, D. C.

Evidencing dislike for Bolshevism and at the same time showing remarkable knowledge of conditions in the United States, the Pope said:

"This is just the ripe time for the spread of Bolshevism. The people of the United States do not realize how far it has spread already nor completely what its spread means."

Introduced by Pope.

The Pope introduced the subject of his own accord by bringing up the Wall street reverses of last year.

"We heard that, following the market crashes, there has been considerable unemployment," the Pontiff remarked.

Mgr. Ryan said there were at least "a couple of millions" unemployed in the United States.

"When a number of persons are out of work and when business leaders are crippled by depression and unable to care for them, this is a favorite period for the introduction and development of Bolshevism," the Pope responded.

The Pontiff related he had first received a forcible impression of the strength and growth of Bolshevism in London some years ago before his elevation to the Papacy.

He asked Mgr. Ryan many questions concerning business and political conditions in the United States, disclosing his close knowledge of American affairs. He then asked Mgr. Ryan his personal opinion on the status of Bolshevism in America.

Mgr. Ryan Cites Prosperity.

The Washington clergyman replied that, although unemployment in America had increased considerably, still he believed Bolshevism would have a much harder time of it in the United States than in other countries, because of the average workman's ownership of property, which would make him disavow the principles of Communism.

In fact, he told the Pope, many millions of workmen own their own homes, and perhaps automobiles, too, an argument which the Bolshevists would have a hard time meeting.

After repeating his warning that America should pay the closest attention lest Bolshevism develop, the pontiff dropped the subject.

Horse's Missing Link Found By Smithsonian Scientists

Idaho Fossils Bridge Gap in Evolution of Present Species From Three-Toed Ancestor, Completing History for Last 25,000,000 Years.

(Associated Press.)

Fossil bones of the connecting link between the present horse and his late three-toed ancestor have been found in Idaho by scientists of Smithsonian Institution.

Dr. G. W. Gidley, mamalogist of the institution, in announcing the discovery yesterday, said this extinct species, which stood just behind the living horse, is a very valuable contribution in tracing the evolution of that animal.

With the finding of these skeletal remains, he said there is no major missing link in the anatomical evolution of the horse as far back as 25,000,000 years. Only two gaps, which lie beyond that period, remain to be bridged, he said, to have a complete evolution history of the animal, which was once no larger than the fox.

The rich deposits of bones which were unearthed near Hagerman by the Gidley exploration group consists of nearly 30 complete skulls and enough other remains to total 5,000 pounds. Dr. Gidley expects to be able to reconstruct at least three complete skeletons from the collection, which has exhibits of both sexes of the animal from embryon to old age.

"Plesippus, as it is called in scientific circles, is believed by Dr. Gidley to have become extinct on the continents of North and South America 1,000,000 or more years ago. It was about four-fifths of the size of the average horse of today, Dr. Gidley said. It had a very large head, long nose and small hoofs.

Dr. Gidley believes the animals were caught in the mire either while drinking water or crossing the stream. The accumulation of bones, he holds, probably extended over hundreds of years. Skeletal remains of other animals in the same deposit, he said, will aid in establishing definitely the age of plesippus.

Jones, president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, stated last night that he will appoint a special committee to confer with the committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation making a study of the various forms of county government.

"The question as to the most adequate form of government most suitable for Arlington County is a question that should be well considered and one that should have the hearty cooperation of all the citizens before that definite plan should be adopted," said Mr. Jones.

"The Chamber of Commerce has at all times been ready to cooperate with the citizens of the county in questions that mean the future development of the county and is ready to cooperate with any committee that is making a study of an adequate form of government for the county," he declared.

He will occupy the rooms formerly occupied by the county health department.

The Arlington County Business and Professional Women's Club have completed plans for an out-of-door meeting to be held Thursday night at Rock Creek Park at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Agnes F. Conradi, chairman of the finance committee, has arranged an interesting program at which time the new members of the club will be welcomed.

Continuing its study into the question of forms of government most adapted to Arlington County, the special committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation meeting at the home of Hugh J. McGrath last night devoted its time to studying all phases of the commission form with county manager and incorporation.

Chairman Robert N. Anderson reported that Arthur Orr, member of the committee, is now on a tour of the State visiting a number of cities with the view of gaining first-hand information as to the advantages of incorporation.

While no definite decision has been reached by the committee it is generally understood that the committee is favoring the commission form.

MODIFIED SEA PACT RATIFICATION ASKED

ABSENTEES ROUNDED UP

"Great Britain won the superiority over us because Great Britain followed her admiralty," he said. "In America, he added, the Navy opposes the treaty and is not being followed.

1. The instruments limits all classes of warships for the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

Warships Substantially Cut.

2. The treaty accomplishes substantial reduction in capital ships, by accelerating the scrapping by Great Britain of five, by the United States of three, and by Japan of one of these very costly vessels.

3. Japanese submarines will be greatly reduced, and the use of these outlaws of the seas will be restricted by the treaty so that their effectiveness when attacking will be comparable to that of surface craft.

4. It is indisputable that the treaty gives the Navy of the United States a better relative position with respect to the navies of Great Britain and Japan than it occupied at the time of the conference.

5. Assuming that the promotion of international good will is universally regarded as desirable, the treaty should command friendly consideration, because it tends to allay the fears and rivalries, which prior to its negotiation threatened to involve the three countries in intense competition respecting commerce and sea power.

6. The refusal of advice and consent by the Senate to ratification would threaten serious consequences.

Country Believed Safer.

After discussing some of the objections raised to the pact, Senator Robinson said:

"It is my belief that our country and its commerce will be safer with the treaty than without it."

Senator McKellar said:

"President Hoover is willing to violate in spirit the Constitution of the United States, to disregard its mandate of equality between himself and the Senate in the treaty making power, and affront 96 members of the Senate, elected by the people of the various States of the United States, rather than to affront representatives of foreign nations.

"The President is surely an internationalist. He has more regard for the representatives of Great Britain, Japan or France or Italy, apparently, than he has for the representatives of the United States Senate who are his co-equals in the treaty making power."

President Hoover, Senator McKellar asserted, is impregnated with the old doctrine of secret diplomacy," that doctrine that has caused more wars than all the battleships that have ever been built have caused." The Senator charged that the President has been guilty of a breach of trust in not taking the Senate into his confidence respecting ratification of the pact.

Alleged Husband of 16 Wives Held.

Mexico City, July 14 (A.P.).—A man with sixteen wives, according to the police, is being held here. He is Basilio Palencia, arrested for falsely claiming to be a brother of Jose Mijares Palencia, Mexican chief of police. The authorities said the alleged bigamist extraordinary married women in Tapachula, Chilpancingo, Salina Cruz and other places.

BRITAIN TAKES STEP TO APPROVE TREATY

Bill to Give Effect to Pact in Empire Introduced in Commons.

FIRST READING IS GIVEN

London, July 14 (A.P.).—The British government in the house of commons today took the first step toward ratification of the London Naval Treaty, now under discussion by the United States Senate in Washington.

A bill giving effect to the treaty so far as Great Britain is concerned was introduced into the house by A. V. Alexander, Labor first lord of the admiralty, and was given its first reading. There was no discussion.

In British parliamentary practice the first reading of the bill is a mere formality. Debate is opened on the second reading, or still later, at the committee stage. After a third reading the bill goes to the house of lords for three readings and a committee stage.

Experienced observers believe that debate on the treaty bill in the house of lords may be protracted, but surmise it will pass through all stages in both houses without great difficulty.

Prime Minister MacDonald said in the house last Monday the government hoped to pass the treaty bill through all its stages before the end of the present session, which comes early next month.

The "London Naval Treaty bill," as it is called, is devised to give effect to a "treaty signed at London on behalf of His Majesty and certain other powers, and to be a repeal of section 4 of the Treaties of Washington act of 1922."

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at 11 a. m. and recessed at 5 p. m. to 11 a. m. today.

When the roll was called, 52 senators answered to their names, most entering the chamber after the roll call.

Senator Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, urged ratification of the London naval treaty, declaring that he believed it "will do justice to our citizens and work no oppression on others."

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, severely condemned President Hoover for his refusal to turn over the secret documents relating to the preliminary negotiations leading up to the London Naval Conference.

Senator Oddie (Republican), Nevada, asserted that by the pact the United States is given a Navy "not properly balanced for trade protection."

Leaders expressed the hope that adjournment would be reached by July 24.

Among the absentee senators who have arrived in town are Senators Kean, New Jersey; Gould, Maine, and Pine, Oklahoma, all Republicans.

REALTY MAN SLAYS MAGNATE IN COURT

OCCURS IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, July 14 (A.P.).—A spectacular career from factory helper to millionaire closed in tragedy today when Motley H. Flint, 65, retired banker, was shot to death in a courtroom by Frank D. Keaton, 56, real estate dealer. Brooding over loss of savings seven years ago prompted the killing.

The victim for years was a leading figure in political, banking and motion-picture financial circles of Los Angeles. Some 30 years ago he was postmaster here, and he was a brother of the late Frank P. Flint, former United States senator.

The thought to slay came yesterday after he had taken his two little girls to Sunday school, Keaton told the police late today. It developed into a maddening desire which led him into Superior Court, where he knew Mr. Flint was a witness. This contradicted an earlier statement that the shooting was not planned. Keaton had known Mr. Flint for 28 years, but had not seen him for several years.

As Mr. Flint passed through the gate at the rail to the bar Keaton stood up and fired three shots. The banker fell dead. Keaton threw the pistol at him, raised his hands in surrender and broke the intense silence following the shots with the cry:

"This fellow ruined me! He ruined me!"

The banker retired a year and a half ago and went to France. Two months ago he returned to face indictment with 17 others for usury conspiracy in connection with the Julian Petroleum crash in which investors lost millions. These cases were dismissed, but he still faced charges of violation of the State corporate securities act.

The trial in progress today was not connected with the Julian case nor with the investment in which Keaton said his savings were lost. It was a suit by David O. Selznick, film executive, for $250,000 damages against a bank here in connection with a stock deal.

Keaton said he lost his savings in purchasing First National Bank stock through Flint several years ago. Alienists examined him and pronounced he was suffering from some form of psychosis.

Later he talked about the Julian crash but no connection of that with his investments was disclosed.

600 Fight Forest Fire Vainly in Cascades

Bend, Oreg., July 14 (A.P.).—The 4,000-acre forest fire in the foothills of the Cascades, broke natural bounds today and spread into the Deschutes National forest and the Gilchrist-Johnson Timber Co. holdings. The situation was acute. Little or no progress was made by 600 fighters struggling in smoke and terrific heat on a 9-mile front.

Wind turned the conflagration into "a crown fire," flames leaping from tree top to tree top, making fighting extremely difficult and trenching useless. A second large fire was reported about 2 miles north of McKenzie Pass in approximately 1,000 acres of timber. Twenty-eight small fires were started yesterday by lightning.

Five Men and Girl Drown As Squall Capsizes Boat

One by One Victims Slip Into Icy Atlantic After Clinging for Hours to Tumbling Wreck; Sole Survivor Tells Story.

Boston, July 14 (A.P.).—Five young men and a girl sank to death, one by one, in the cold, wind-tossed brine of the Atlantic last night, and early today after they had clung for hours to a little sloop that had capsized in a sudden squall a few miles off Scituate.

One lone survivor, Baden Garceau, of Scituate and Boston, clung to the tumbling wreck for hours after his mates had disappeared and was saved at last by the mackerel seiner St. Rita, which brought him and the body of the girl to Boston.

The dead are:

Walter Klaiber, 28, Youngstown, Ohio, graduate of Ohio State University.

John Blower, 25, 3120 Gaylord avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

John Blower, 25, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Betty Munsell, 19, Watertown, Mass.

David Gierasch, 27, Concord, Mass.

Charles Hall, 23, Greenbush and Cambridge, owner and skipper of the knockabout Nomad.

"We started out in Hall's sloop from Scituate at 5 o'clock yesterday," Garceau said. "Two others who had planned to go with us found they could not go.

"On the way to the pier we met Gierasch and the girl and invited them to go along. The boat was an 18-foot boat knockabout. We went out 5 miles and decided to return. We got back about 3 miles when a squall came up and capsized us. The main sail was up and the sheet tied.

"Five of the party climbed onto the keel and two of us into the rigging. Those in the rigging were Hall and myself. Gierasch became panic stricken. He screamed and sent the others of the party into a panic.

"Gierasch went overboard twice and I hauled him back each time. He went over a third time and as he did so he grabbed Blower by the leg. I then went overboard and rescued Blower, but Gierasch was swept away and drowned.

"The waves then washed Blower off and he was lost. Labire clung on until midnight, when he was forced to relinquish his hold and was drowned.

"During this period we saw the New York boat go by and a Coast Guard boat about a half-mile away.

"Following the disappearance of Labire, there remained only Hall, the girl and myself. The girl was calm and clung with Hall to the keel while I stayed in the rigging. Finally Hall lost his hold and disappeared.

"At about 6.30 today, the girl, despite her valiant efforts to cling on until a vessel should come to our succor, gave up the fight and floated away from the bobbing craft.

"I was picked up at 9 o'clock, 6 miles off Scituate, by the skipper of the St. Rita, a mackerel seiner."

MRS. M'CORMICK GIVES DATA ON CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES

she gave him the names of Roy O. West, Republican national committeeman; Jacob Allen and Thomas Healey, Deneen campaign leaders, as the men who could tell most about the senator's race, and was assured they would be heard by the committee.

Mrs. McCormick appeared annoyed by Senator Nye's persistent effort to link her name with various other Republican factions in Chicago and Cook County and emphatically told the senator she had testified under oath that she had no alliances with any group or organization, "and that was the truth whether he believed it or not."

Senator Nye sought to learn if there had been some contact between Mrs. McCormick and various leaders in Chicago which she vehemently denied.

Compares Her Expenses.

Mrs. McCormick read from the extended statement which she had prepared showing that aside from the $252,500 she spent from her own funds, the only additional money spent in her behalf to her knowledge was $67,200 various friends and relatives had contributed to three organizations of volunteers who worked in her behalf.

The senatorial nominee compared her campaign's expense with the expenses of the last presidential campaign and cited figures by comparison in three-fourths of the States. She said her campaign was $557,000 less costly than the presidential campaign in Illinois.

During her testimony Mrs. McCormick asked if she would be allowed the privilege of cross-examining the numerous witnesses and was informed she would be permitted to do so.

When asked if she had employed William Hard as a feature writer during her campaign, Mrs. McCormick said she considered the question "impertinent," but replied that she had not.

Calls Article an Error.

Senator Nye had introduced a magazine article written by Hard in which the author told of an "extensive political organization maintained by Mrs. McCormick." She said the article was grossly in error.

Aside from Mrs. McCormick, who was before the committee virtually the entire day, the only witnesses heard were A. D. Lasker, millionaire Chicago advertising man, and three of Mrs. McCormick's down State workers. Mr. Lasker testified the only contribution he had made to the senatorial campaign was a check for $2,000 given to Lucius Wilson as treasurer of the Voters Progress League, one of the three organizations of volunteers which supported Mrs. McCormick. This sum was included in the $67,000.

The three other witnessess testified the only sums they expended were received from Mrs. McCormick and were included in her report.

TRIO HELD IN ATTACK ASKS TRIAL BY JURY

Two Freed on Bail After Fight at North Beach Church Services.

$3,000 BOND SET FOR ONE

Three men, supposed to live in Washington, demanded a jury trial in Prince Frederick, Calvert County, Md., yesterday, when arraigned on charges of disturbing church services, resisting an officer and assault and battery. One of them was shot in the leg in one of the melees which were staged in the vicinity Sunday night.

Two of the men, Joseph McCafferty and Lawrence McNally, are at liberty on bond of $2,000. The third, Tony Bruno, is still held. Bruno, who will need bond of $3,000 to get free, was charged with assault and battery, in addition to the other counts.

The story told to Justice of Peace J. E. Donald was that the trio were disturbing church services at North Beach. The police force of the town, numbering four or five, attempted to quell it. After a lengthy battle, they were successful and the men were incarcerated in the local jail.

Bruno, it is said, was in a cell with another prisoner, whom he immediately assaulted. This led to a decision to remove the men to the county jail at Prince Frederick, where they could have separate cells.

On the road, the trio attacked Sheriff M. M. Buckler. He in response shot McCafferty in the leg. The wound was not serious. The men were subdued and jailed without further trouble.

Yesterday morning they were arraigned and the bail set. McCafferty's wound was pronounced not serious. The men gave no street address in Washington.

Five Gold Miners Killed by Flames

Men Trapped as Fire Burns Surface Buildings and Attacks Forest.

Sacramento, Calif., July 14 (A.P.). The bodies of five miners trapped in the Glenn gold mine at Robertsons Flat were brought to the surface late today.

Fire broke out in the mine cookhouse and spread rapidly down the shaft. The men attempted to escape by fleeing to a lower level, where the flames trapped them. The victims were Joe Shearer, Henry Hansen, James Campini, Tom Capitan and a man known as Henry.

State Senator J. M. Inman, Sacramento, one of the mine owners, arrived at the scene and took charge of rescue work and fighting of the fire, which burned all surface buildings and surrounding timber. W. D. Campbell, of the Forest Service, said about fifteen men were trying to control the flames spreading through big timber adjacent to the mine.

PROCESS TO DOUBLE OUTPUT OF GASOLINE

can not be handled by the cracking process.

"Gasoline consists of carbon and hydrogen. In the heavy oils there is not sufficient hydrogen. Therefore, in order to manufacture motor gasoline from these oils it is necessary to add hydrogen.

"This is not as simple as it may seem. Chemists have been working on the problem for years. Doubtless the most intensive worker in this line is Dr. F. Bergius, the German chemist. His process originally was designed for obtaining oil from coal."

"The ultimate success of the hydrogenation process depends upon finding a source of cheap hydrogen. Dr. Bergius proposes to use the hydrogen contained in natural gas or in gas manufactured at the refinery. There is considerable work also being done in low-pressure hydrogenation; and owing to the physical difficulties encountered when employing very high temperatures and high pressures, this line of development opens up some very interesting possibilities."

Benefit Garden Party Begins Today.

Georgetown Tape Registers Quakes

Two Other Stations Record Shocks, Probably in Central America.

(Associated Press.)

The Georgetown University Observatory reported recording strong earthquake shocks beginning at 5:46 o'clock last evening and continuing until 7:30. The disturbance was estimated to be 2,190 miles away in a north-south line.

Denver, July 14 (A.P.).—An earthquake of second or third degree intensity was recorded today on the seismograph at Regis College, Father A. W. Forstall, seismologist, said the quake started at 3:40 p. m. (M. S. T.), reached its maximum at 3:58, and concluded at 4:38, lasting 49 minutes. He estimated it was 2,000 miles from Denver. It was probably in Guatemala, Father Forstall said.

Milwaukee, July 14 (A.P.).—The Rev. A. H. Poetker, professor of physics at Marquette University, said the seismograph at the university registered an earthquake of "moderate intensity" in a north-south line presumably 2,000 miles from here. The first tremors were recorded at 5:46:46 p. m. (C. D. T.) and reached maximum intensity about 6 p. m. Father Poetker said he believed the quake was in Central America.

Miners and Operators Discuss Fact-Finding

New York, July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The anthracite wage committee wrestled with the operators' proposal for a fact-finding agency to assist in wage adjustments today with the matter still open when adjournment was taken until tomorrow.

The committee also took up the phrasing of certain clauses in the present agreement covering working conditions which are not satisfactory to one side or the other because of ambiguity, but made little progress, owing, according to the official communique, "to the difficulty of accomplishing this purpose because of the danger of abrogating certain customs and practices now in effect."

Three in Car Kill Detroit Gangster

Companion Probably Fatally Wounded by Volley at Rumrunner.

Detroit, July 14 (A.P.).—Henry Topancey, 30 years old, alleged member of the Moceri-Licavoli gang, was shot and killed and Louis Salvio, 36, also believed by police to be a member of the gang, probably was fatally wounded today in an outbreak of gang warfare. Topancey was the ninth gangster slain here in ten days.

Salvio and Topancey were shot by three men who drove up while they were sitting in an automobile at Jefferson avenue near the Belle Isle Bridge. Salvio was taken to Receiving Hospital where examination showed he was shot in the right kidney. He refused to name the assailants.

Topancey has a long police record. He was arrested last winter after the shooting of Inspector Henry J. Garvin, head of the police crime and bomb squad. Police were unable to connect him with the wounding of Inspector Garvin, and he was released. The Moceri-Licavoli gangsters are known as rumrunners.

Sperry Bequeaths Y. M. C. A. Million

Association Is Rewarded by Inventor It Helped Years Ago.

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Half a century ago a poor boy from a country town went to seek his fortune in Chicago, and at the Y. M. C. A. he found a home and fellowship and friendly guidance. The boy was Elmer A. Sperry, inventor of the gyroscope, and in his will, which is to be filed tomorrow, he leaves $1,000,000 for Y. M. C. A. activities in payment of that old debt of gratitude.

The remainder of the estate, amounting to several millions, is left to the three surviving children, Edward C. Sperry, Helen Sperry Lea, and Elmer A. Sperry, jr.

The bequest of the Y. M. C. A. is left in the form of a trust fund. For the first ten years the income is to be divided equally between the seventy-fifth anniversary drive of the Brooklyn and Queens Y. M. C. A. and the completion of the Flatbush Y. M. C. A. building fund. After that it will be used for any Y. M. C. A. project the trustees may designate, preference to be given the Brooklyn and Queens Y. M. C. A. and particularly the Flatbush branch.

BOY AVIATOR PINNED IN PLANE IS SOUGHT

set out for Bennington. He wandered for five hours before finding aid.

Mockler collapsed tonight while trying to lead a searching party to the scene of the wreck. Mockler, exhausted when he joined the searchers, was carried to a store about 8 miles from here.

The plane left Cleveland, Ohio, this morning. Mockler was to deliver a lecture at Keene, N. H., tonight and Goldsborough was acting as his pilot on the trip.

Rescuers' first attempts to reach the imprisoned pilot had been unsuccessful and scores of volunteers were searching aimlessly through the thickly wooded sides of Woodford Mountain. Planes brought from Manchester and Springfield circled the woodland for miles without avail. They reported back to their ports at dark to wait until daylight to take up their search again.

Alive when his companion left him, Goldsborough lay somewhere in a tract of unbroken wilderness. Mockler, who scoured the mountainsides with rescuers, was unable to take them to the wrecked plane. He had traveled five hours through dense woods unmindful of direction and only remembered that "they crashed a tree near the top of a mountain."

Unsettled and uninhabited, Woodford Mountain is one of the loneliest spots in the unbroken country that lies in a triangle between Bennington, Brattleboro and the Massachusetts line near Greenfield, Mass.

A few sparsely laid State highways run through the southern Vermont mountains and those few wind up the mountainsides and down again with hardly a vestige of road or bypath running down from the hills to meet them. Spans of woodland, unbroken and wild, lie between the roads. Miles of thickly wooded hillsides run through the country with hardly a hut or camp to break the monotony of trees and brush.

If searching parties fail to sight the small bit of wreckage that hangs to a tree top tonight or tomorrow it will probably be days before the woody acreage can be covered thoroughly by searchers.

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old flier who crashed today near Benningotn, Vt., is the son of Brice Goldsborough, who lost his life in the Dawn, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson's plane which disappeared in the north Atlantic Ocean in December, 1927, during a hop from New York to Newfoundland, preparatory to a projected flight to Croydon, England.

The youthful airman holds three junior transcontinental flight records. He passed tests for a private flying license last November and set out from Westfield, N. J., last April on his transcontinental flights.

He set a new junior record for an east-west crossing of the continent to Los Angeles, and returned to New York in record time. The round-trip time of 62 hours and 21 minutes was a third junior record.

BYRD ENDS ROUNDS OF PUBLIC DINNERS

GUEST OF PLANE FIRM

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd shoved off today on a two and a half months' "liberty party."

For 19 months he was on duty in the Antarctic or en route there or back. Since June 19 he has been on duty in the United States, consuming testimonial luncheons and dinners and teas, receiving medals, riding open cars in long, circle parades.

Today he attended his last formal luncheon of the reception cruise—one tendered by the Wright Aeronautical Co.—and in a few days will leave for Dublin, N. H., his summer home, there to write and rest and play with Mrs. Byrd and their children.

On September 30 he will start a lecture tour that will carry him all over the United States, again forced to play the role of hero. This summer he hopes to be just plain Dick Byrd, working author, country squire, on furlough from public attention.

The round of receptions, luncheons, dinners, he has attended since he landed in New York last month from the Antarctic adventure, would have tested the temper and digestion of half an army. Admiral Byrd seems to have stood it well. Intimates said he appeared today more fresh than when he came back from the land of ice.

Eager to escape public adulation, the admiral has laid aside his distinguishing naval uniform, white ducks, gold epaulets, gold-braid-trimmed cap, and put on "civvies." When he left his train in Pennsylvania Terminal this morning, home from receptions in Chicago and St. Louis, he mingled unnoticed in the flood of returning week-end vacationists.

The admiral has no plans beyond his lecture tour next winter. After that it will be time to talk of far places yet to be explored, to think of high flung mountains, barriers of ice, a long trail, a good wind and sporting job to do.

BOY, 14, COMPLETES 100 HOURS IN TREE

sitting for Ferdinand Wilson Haffey, 11, who began his sit last Friday noon.

Young Haffey, who is a golf caddie, has a platform in his tree big enough to enable him to stand up and tee off golf balls, which are patiently retrieved by members of his "refueling" crew, so that he expects to be in as good golf form when he ends the sit as he was at the beginning.

Also he has a tennis racquet and returns serves tossed up from the ground. In a nearby tree within hailing distance of Haffey, Anna Rule continues the tree-sit she began Saturday noon.

Needah, Wis., July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Perched 18 feet from the ground in a lofty maple, Aloysius Werner, 15-year old Needah boy, at 2 p. m. Monday had passed his thirtieth hour in his attempt for the national tree-sitting title. He is being assisted by a ground crew of the neighborhood gang and is the center of admiration and attention and several boys and girl friends. Despite a chilly night, he swathed himself in blankets, crawled into a hammock and dozed away peacefully, awakening Monday morning with a huge appetite. Werner has no plans as to when he will come down, he said.

Murphysboro, Ill., July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—When Ray Huppert, 14, was found in a dazed condition in a local school yard, where he was trying to climb a telegraph pole, it was discovered that he had fallen out of a tree after 25 hours' endurance sitting. Young Ruppert fought and scratched in his insistence that he be permitted to resume his endurance contest. He won at 10 a. m. today. The boy was credited with 36 hours up, 36 hours in addition to the 25 prior to his fall.

Mr. Harrison, who became ill during a visit here about ten days ago, entered the hospital, and a few days ago was operated upon by Dr. W. Walt Conaway. The body will be sent to Richmond tomorrow morning.

Richmond, Va., July 14 (A.P.).—Henry Sydnor Harrison, who died today at Atlantic City, was formerly chief editorial writer for the Richmond Times-Dispatch, resigning in 1910 to devote his attention exclusively to letters. Writing over the signature "Henry Second," his first novel was "Captivating Mary Carstairs." This had just appeared in print when he completed "Queed." Both were "best sellers." Other works included "V. V.'s Eyes" and "Angela's Business."

Endurance Flight Row Will End Out of Court

Chicago, Ill., July 14 (A.P.).—Litigation involving the endurance flight profits of the Hunter brothers will be settled out of court, it was announced today. A motion to restrain the flying Hunters from using the proceeds of their flight was withdrawn.

The motion was filed while John and Kenneth Hunter were still soaring above Sky Harbor Airport in their record-breaking plane, "City of Chicago." It was in behalf of stockholders of a defunct concern which once owned the plane. The stockholders averred that the plane was sold to the Hunter brothers without their knowledge.

SPIER FIRM ENJOYS 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Fourteenth Street Jewelry Establishment Marks Birthday Today.

STEADY GROWTH CITED

The jewelry firm of George W. Spier, at 806 Fourteenth street northwest, is celebrating its fortieth anniversary today.

The business originally was established at 310 Ninth street northwest by George W. Spier, who also founded the Horological Institute of America and was recognized as one of the Nation's most notable watchmakers.

At first Mr. Spier conducted his business unassisted, but gradually acquired a staff of assistants until his organization included five watchmakers, one jeweler and a porter.

When he retired from business, shortly before his death on May 2, 1924, his head watchmaker had been with him 32 years; the head watchmaker's son, now in business for himself, 15 years; his head salesman, Herman Richards, now proprietor of the establishment, 29 years, and the other employes for at least two decades. Even the colored porter had been in Mr. Spier's employ for more than 20 years.

Almost from the beginning of his life in America, Mr. Spier associated himself with organized labor, and the principles which have guided its advance were very dear to him. When he became an employer himself, he did not forget the tenets he had treasured as an employe, and when he retired he had put into operation plans and methods for continuation of his business by his "companions" who had helped him achieve success while in his employ.

One of Mr. Spier's first actions after opening his store on Ninth street was to join the Washington Board of Trade, and he was a charter member of the Washington Chamber of Commerce and of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. For two years he was president of the Jewelers' Society of the District, and was a leader in the early-closing movement at a time when stores of Washington remained open until 9 o'clock or later in the evening.

In February, 1920, Mr. Spier was appointed on the staff of the Smithsonian Institution as custodian of watches, and shortly after when he had presented a report to Carl W. Mitman, curator of mechanical technology of the National Museum, aid of the National Research Council was secured for establishing the Horological Institute, with Mr. Spier as its first president.

Under guidance of Mr. Spier, and subsequently Mr. Richards, the business has grown in the four decades of its existence until now it ranks as one of the oldest and most representative business institutions in the Capital.

Noted Canadian Pilot Killed in Lake Landing

Toronto, July 14 (A.P.).—Lieut. J. D. Vance, one of Canada's best-known air pilots, was killed at Hunter Bay, on Great Bear Lake, today when he attempted a landing in fog and smoke on glassy water. He was apparently thrown from the window of his cockpit and drowned. His passenger escaped with cut hands. Lieut. Vance was a war pilot and after the war was engaged in conveying officials to and from the peace conference at Versailles. Recently he had been employed by the Dominion Explorers Co.

Tumbles Down Stairs and Strikes Head on Floor; Injuries Serious.

William Albrecht, 36 years old, of 3241 N street northwest, was seriously injured late yesterday in the Fourteenth Precinct Station when he fell down a flight of stairs and struck his head on the flooring.

Albrecht came into the police station for a drink of water. As he ascended the stairs in the rear he apparently suffered a weak spell and fell backward. Policemen removed him to Georgetown University Hospital in the patrol wagon.

Doctors diagnosed his injuries as concussion of the brain, lacerations of the head, and a possible fracture of the skull.

Ten Die in Battle Of Rival Villages

Mexican Communities Now Prepare Reprisals in Land Clash.

Ayutla, Guerrero, Mexico, July 14 (A.P.).—The killing of ten persons and wounding of many others in a fight yesterday between the rival villagers of Chauatache and Zoyatlan today roused both sides to warlike preparations.

Great excitement prevailed in the villages, and further clashes were feared. The trouble arose from a dispute over the boundary line of communal lands.

Villagers of Cahuatache allege they were attacked by men from Zoyatlan while peacefully working in the fields. Most of the dead and wounded were among men of the former village. The survivors are said to be preparing a swift reprisal.

When tempted to over-indulge

"Reach for a Lucky instead"

THE BATTLE CRY OF MODERATION!

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow* by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern, ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Lucky Strike has an extra, secret heating process. Everyone knows that heat purifies and so 20,679 physicians say that Luckies are less irritating to your throat.

*"There is only one remedy for fat, and that is eat the right food . . . There are at least one hundred so-called obesity cures. None of these is permanent. All of these are injurious," says Vance Thompson, Ph.D., in his famous little book, "Eat and Grow Thin," published by E. P. Dutton & Company. We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight, and by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

ROBINSON IN RADIO TALK HITS TARIFF

SAYS TIME TEST NEEDED

Declaring that "the shadow of gloom still falls over the United States and envelopes almost every form of enterprise and activity," Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, said in an address on "The New Tariff and Agriculture," broadcast from Station WRC over a National Broadcasting Co. network yesterday:

"We all hope prosperity may soon return, but there is nothing whatever to indicate that such a change is in immediate or early prospect, or that it is being quickened and assured through the influences of changes in import duties."

Senator Robinson admitted that "sufficient time has not elapsed since the new tariff went into effect to permit of a complete and convincing test of its effect and value," but asserted that "no one, however great his devotion to the protective tariff system, can place implicit confidence in the Hawley-Smoot tariff law as a psychological or practical factor" in accomplishing "greater confidence, saner and more liberal investments and dimunition in unemployment."

The promise that the flexible provision of the law will be used to correct its mistakes was described by Senator Robinson as "a delusion and a snare."

"Less than 40 rates," he declared, "have been increased or diminished by the President through the power conferred upon him by the flexible provision. In all important cases dealt with in this way there have resulted increases. The only reductions, as for instance, those affecting bob-white quails, paint brush handles and certain chemicals, bear little relation to the tariff as a general factor in economic conditions."

Behind the Screens

—With NELSON B. BELL—

ALTHOUGH it possessed sufficient advantages to induce a change in house policy, it seems that the innovation of Friday openings at the Fox Theater also presents an occasional disadvantage.

For example, in order to reach Washington in time for the opening of his week of personal appearance on Friday, Frank Richardson, remembered for his lusty singing of "Walkin' With Susie" in the first Fox "Movietone Follies;" "Pickin' Petals Off of Daisies," in "Sunny Side Up," and "Mona," in "Happy Days," will be forced to fly from Detroit to the Capital at an expenditure of a considerable extra sum of money on the part of the Fox organization. This was determined yesterday during a telephone conversation between Hardie Meakin, managing director of the local cathedral, and William Raynor, ditto of the Detroit house.

For the smiling and songful Mr. Richardson it will be flying almost home. He is a Philadelphian by birth and is on his way East for the primary purpose of appearing in his old home town. He made his professional debut with a medicine show, doing ten performances a day, but a little later became the "wonder boy tenor" with the famous old Dumont Minstrels, finally outgrowing this title to become "the joy boy of song."

You of picture fandom will probably identify him most readily as the tenor who broke into the big screen time contemporaneously with Marjorie White, each aiding the other mightily in getting "up there."

Since it is the usual custom for the theater offering a personal appearance to assume the contract salary of the star so presented, I shudder to think what next week's overhead may be at Fourteenth and F. Frank better be good!

Speaking of Hardie Meakin, in the July 12 issue of "The Last Word," company magazine of the Fox Theaters Corporation, which has just come to my desk, Mr. Meakin is given a full column puff that lays particular stress upon the helpful work chart he has devised for the purpose of keeping abreast of his office routine, newspaper deadlines, etc., as well as upon the thoughtful provision that has been made here for the admission of visiting artists to the galleries of the House and Senate, the White House and other points of interest that a stranger usually wastes a terrific amount of time in reaching and gaining admittance to. Those weary years of contact with Capitol Hill evidently were not without recompense.

M. J. "Mike" Cullen, presiding elder of the Loew interests in Washington, and Mrs. Cullen, the former Hazelle Jennings, of the Ziegfeld forces, plan to leave the Capital on Saturday for a fortnight's respite from film features and footlights. My last information was that they had not decided where to go but would defer decision until reaching the station and finding out what good spots the ticket agent had left.

Unless your eyes are less given to pranks than my own, you will be startled more than once while Loretta Young is lying with her eyes closed in the character of Margaret Waring in "The Road to Paradise," at the Earle, by her astonishing resemblance to Corinne Griffith. The camera, to be sure, is at an angle that foreshortens her face somewhat, but that does not alter the fact that for an instant I wondered how they ever persuaded "the orchid" to do it—which, of course, they never did.

And that reminds me that it does not do to take sides against Lehigh's little brother, Rudy Vallee, as I did in Saturday's column, unless you want to spend the next day reading a heavily swollen mail. Although fairly warned in advance, I had no idea these girls took their crooners so seriously!

While I am not in any sense a referee, either by my own or any other appointment, it seems only fair to say that so far it is a dead heat. One letter knocks your ears down for daring to impugn the supremacy of Mr. Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees; the next pats you on the back for perceiving the obvious superiorities of Will Osborne and his excellent orchestra, currently at the Earle.

Perhaps Rudy's tired bloodhound eyes are what annoy me, more than his expressionless voice.

Anyhow, the boys certainly have their followings, and no great clairvoyance is required to determine which side is which—just a meager ability to read!

Reverting to the Fox momentarily, I should be glad to know who asked for "After the Ball"—the popular song hit of 1893, the year of the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago—in Mr. Brusiloff's otherwise credible—and creditable—composite "request" overture. Whoever it was, I don't believe it!

If pressed, I will exchange a copy pencil and a typewriter for a fishing pole and a bathing suit.

Hains Point is calling!

ever, for one of the members George B. Castro, formerly with the alien property custodian. Mr. Castro, a Utahan, is being sponsored by Senator Smoot.

No nominations for the commission or for the reorganized Tariff Commission; indeed, no nominations at all, will be sent to the Senate, however, until it has disposed of the treaty. All six members of the Tariff Commission must be either replaced or renamed within 90 days after the enactment of the tariff bill.

There are some judgeship appointments, as well as that of former Secretary of Agriculture Jardine as Minister to Egypt, to be sent up as soon as the treaty is disposed of. The President does not want to do anything just now to divert the attention of such a temperamental body as the Senate is.

Some surprise was occasioned at Mr. Jardine's acceptance of the Egyptian post. The commonly accepted explanation of why he did not remain in the Cabinet was that he had to make some money. The Egyptian post is hardly a financially attractive one.

—a professional endorsement the like of which has never been known in the entire history of beauty culture

NEVER, in all the history of beauty culture, has there been such universal approval of any product as is given to Palmolive Soap today. When trained, skilful professionals unite in recommending one particular soap, that recommendation is significant. And there are 23,720 such specialists, in 16 different countries, who consider Palmolive Soap the ideal means of keeping skin clear, lovely, wholesome!

The need of soap and water

Experts, in studying the skin, find that the pores secrete oil, dust, dirt and powder. These accumulations gather into hard little masses. Unless these masses are removed thoroughly and regularly, the pores become coarse, blackheads appear . . . and along come all those blemishes one wishes so to avoid.

Now, the one best way to remove impurities from the pores, is the bland, safe lather of Palmolive Soap. It gets down beneath the surface. It routs out dirt and dust without irritation, leaving the skin refreshed and glowing with natural color.

The specialist studies skin care, experiments with methods and products until the one best way is found. And 23,720 such specialists advise Palmolive.

Here is the 2-minute treatment

To get the best results, use your Palmolive Soap this way: make a rich lather. Work this up with both hands, then massage it gently into the skin of face and throat. Allow it to penetrate the pores. Then rinse it off, first with warm water, gradually with colder and colder. That's all there is to it! Use ice as an astringent occasionally if you have an oily skin. You'll love the refreshing, delicate afterglow that Palmolive leaves.

And, of course, you'll use it for the bath. It costs so little that ordinary soaps are extravagant in comparison. Millions let it do for the entire body what it does so well for the face. Why don't you begin this very day?

DANGER TO THE PRESIDENT.

The collision and near collision involving White House cars returning from the Rapidan on two successive Sundays suggest the need for surrounding these jaunts with additional safeguards. President Hoover desires to avoid so far as possible all signs of display. A police escort mounted on motorcycles unquestionably would attract attention to the White House cars, but in the interest of safeguarding the official party it would seem that such a detail is necessary.

The public is naturally interested in the movement of the President. A parade of White House cars commands attention in Washington and, to a much greater extent, outside Washington. The young lady who, disregarding the Secret Service detail, dashed by the President's car two weeks ago set an example that probably will be emulated by notoriety seekers, and the driver who, having missed sideswiping the President's car by a matter of inches, collided with Secretary Richey's car, lost her head to no greater degree than others are apt to lose their heads in the excitement attending the approach of a line of White House cars. Both the President and the public should be protected against untoward incidents of this nature, by giving warning of the passage of the White House cars.

The President prefers to travel the roads like an ordinary man. His office, however, sets him apart and makes it impossible for him to avoid public notice. The idea of a motorcycle escort clearing the highway probably is repugnant to the President, but his safety demands that some such measure be taken to avoid traffic accidents.

BOBBY JONES.

Last winter Lloyds, of London, was willing to wager 50 to 1 against Bobby Jones' chances of winning the four major golf championships during the present season. Three of them, namely, the British open and amateur and the American open, have been played, and Bobby has won them all. The odds now are not 50 to 1 against his chance of winning the American amateur at Merion in September. Bobby Jones has mowed down all opposition with such machinelike precision that the surprise will come if he should fail at Merion, not if he should win.

The golfing clan searches for a word to describe its greatest hero. His play is "marvelous," "miraculous," "wonderful." He is the "iron man," the "golfing automaton," the "supreme artist of the game." The analysts seek to explain his achievements. He started at a tender age, he was tutored correctly and he was encouraged discreetly. But the word that describes his play best is the simple word "perfect," and the explanation of his unparalleled success is that he regards golf as a game and plays it with all his heart because he likes it.

May Bobby Jones win the amateur! May Fortune, the indispensable partner of even the most invincible golfer, play on his side at Merion. Bobby Jones already has accomplished in winning three major championships what no other before him has accomplished. May Fortune permit him to hang up a record this season that only another superman could equal.

A LIST OF QUACKS.

Dr. Shirley Wynne, health commissioner of New York, is out after the quacks. His office has been most active in forcing charlatans to close up their offices in New York City, but Dr. Wynne realizes that it is usual for those barred from practice in any one jurisdiction to move their center of operations elsewhere and continue to prey upon the gullible public. It was for this reason that, six months ago, he undertook the preparation of an index of quacks and fakers. Upon completing the list it was found that some 25,000 purveyors of fake nostrums, cures, diets, mechanical health contrivances, &c., had been listed.

The quack index should be a valuable document. It lists "the life histories and checkered careers of medical crooks, quacks, charlatans, manufacturers of questionable medicines, worthless hair growers and poisonous tonics, peddlers of 'Indian herb' concoctions, harmful cosmetics, including rouges, powders, creams, washes, toilet waters, lip sticks, &c.; manufacturers and peddlers of useless 'horsecollars' and other electrical devices; 'inventors' and peddlers of worthless diets, exercisers and reducing systems; and embraces a complete list of the manufacturers of and analyses of tonics, patent medicines and other medical articles offered for sale that do not have the approval of the American Medical Association." This index will be made generally available.

It is usually difficult to drive a quack from a city because it takes time to establish the fact that his "racket" is against the public interest. By the time the authorities have a case made out against him he has moved on to greener pastures. New York's quack index, however, should make it far easier to build up cases against suspected quacks, in that it will make their histories and the history of their "racket" a matter of public record.

PUBLIC OPPOSES POSTAL INCREASE.

Postmaster General Brown has left no doubt as to his intention to ask for an increase in the first class postal rate. His annual report will urge Congress to change the rate from 2 cents to 2½ cents per ounce for first class mail. Apparently this is considered the most feasible method of reducing the annual postal deficit.

It is difficult to follow the logic of Mr. Brown. His objective is to wipe out the deficit in his department. So far as this can be accomplished by economy and good business methods he will have the support of the public. There is every reason to believe that the deficit could be made to disappear through a change in the methods of bookkeeping. But he will find the public unsympathetic toward any plan to levy an additional tax through the medium of the postal rate.

Items that contribute toward the deficit include subsidies to aviation and the American merchant marine. President Hoover estimated that $14,000,000, nearly one-fifth of the deficit, is incurred through contracts for handling ocean mail and air mail. This is a legitimate expense to the Government because of the impetus it gives transportation lines, and the deficit does not worry anybody.

The franking privilege extended to members of Congress and other officials of the Government is expensive. It is estimated on good authority that the Government could save 40 per cent on its rental bill for postoffices by constructing its own buildings. Another source of loss is the mail that is posted with incorrect or illegible addresses. An extra charge for this sort of carelessness would be entirely legitimate. Why does not the Postoffice Department take advantage of these opportunities to cut down its expenses, rather than recommending increased postal charges?

The postoffice as a business has no deficit. The department as an agency that serves the public through administering subsidies, handling free mail, &c., can not pay its own way. If the postal rates pay the cost of transmitting mail, why should they be increased? The department can not be put in the light of trying to make money from the postal service. As for the expenses that are not properly chargeable against the postal revenue let them be paid out of the Treasury. There is nothing to be gained in taxing the public through the postal system for expenses that are not incurred by carrying the mail.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS.

A day's news is a commentary on human nature. In it are all the dramatics, the pathos, the heroism, the cowardice and the brutality that go to make up the "high spots" in life. Unfortunately the public has come to look chiefly for outcroppings of the latter two qualities of human character in the daily press. But a close examination of a day's news will reveal a wide range of events that show human nature at its finest.

One single day is sufficient to bring tales of heroism and self-sacrifice from many parts of the earth. From Rangoon, Burma, comes the story of Eric Hook, British aviator, who was severely injured when the airplane in which he was flying from England to Australia crashed in the midst of a dense jungle. Although desperate and sick and facing death in the jungle, Hook insisted that his companion, Jimmie Matthews, save himself. That decision has probably cost him an agonizing death, but it saved the life of his friend.

In Philadelphia a man who had never learned to swim jumped into water seventeen feet deep to save his little nephew. In New York a girl rushed into the water to save her father, who had been swept beyond his depth by an undertow. She could swim but little. Nevertheless, she managed to hold her aged father above water until the life guards arrived.

Washington also contributed a tale of heroism in the face of death. Arthur Stred swam two miles to shore when the boat in which he was fishing capsized in Chesapeake Bay. Although exhausted he ran another mile to summon aid for his companion, who, unable to swim, was still clinging to the upset canoe.

A less spectacular but much more curious service came to light in New York. William Christian Paul, a humble and inconspicuous bachelor, bequeathed his entire estate to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The estate consisted of "unique and supreme examples" of Chinese textile art. Paul had spent his life making the collection. His contribution gives the New York museum the second best exhibit of this kind in the world.

These events are as indicative of modern civilization as are the ever-present murder mysteries, service station robberies, and political wrangles of the day.

WHITE HOUSE EXPENSES.

Critics of President Hoover are pointing out an increase in the cost of maintaining the executive department since he took office. The budget estimate for the fiscal year of 1929 was $437,180, compared with $526,620 for the fiscal year that has just ended. The additional funds have been used for employment of more help for the President, for installment of new equipment to improve the efficiency of the department, and for better maintenance of the White House and grounds.

In comparison with the cost of maintaining the executive departments of other nations, the expenses of the President and his official family are small. In the eyes of the world the President is underpaid. Holding the most exacting position in the world he receives but a fraction of what hundreds of business and industrial men are paid. Congress raised the President's salary from $50,000 to $75,000 in 1909, and it has remained at the latter figure.

Expenses of the White House and the executive offices have increased a good deal in recent years. The Presidents have been burdened with so much work that they have found it necessary to enlarge their secretarial and research staffs. The attitude of the country has been to give the President all the assistance he can use to advantage. No one will regret the increased cost of the executive department if it has brought the President relief from some of the strenuous routine that his high office imposes upon him.

The President is hampered in the exercise of his functions by the lack of an adequate executive office. The office which was reconstructed after the fire last winter is suitable for temporary use only. Congress ought to provide new offices for the President and his staff. The Government building program in Washington will never be complete until a fine structure for this purpose has been erected in the vicinity of the White House.

Senator Smoot's idea of a honeymoon is to have a quorum present.

Gen. Aguinaldo is married. He's the fellow that used to be known as a rebel.

FEWER HOMES

By GEORGE E. ANDERSON,
In American Bankers Journal.

In his address before the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in Washington President Hoover referred to the decline in the building of homes in the United States. He mentioned particularly the lack of a steady flow of capital to the home builder as one of the most vital segments of credit from a social point of view and stated that "we need right now an especial effort of our loan institutions in all parts of the country to increase the capital available for this purpose as a part of the remedy for the present situation."

The fact is that the problem of financing home building in this country is one offering a major challenge to the financial genius of America. No one knows exactly what the decline in home building in the country really is, for no one knows the exact amount of home building that has been going on in past years. The partial statistics available in various departments and bureaus of the Government, however, indicate that the decline is very serious and, incidentally, that it antedated the breaking of the business boom last autumn and that it was a cause rather than an effect of the break. A depression in the volume of residential construction in the Nation has a more serious reaction upon the country's business than a similar decline in almost any other line of industry.

There are two agencies of the Government following the matter of home construction so far as is possible under present conditions and present laws—the building and housing division of the Department of Commerce and the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. Their work is along similar lines but the sources of their information are different.

They agree in the general trend of home building although their figures are not comparable. They agree in general that from 40 per cent to 50 per cent of the total building construction work done in this country is of residential buildings—the one-family house, the two-family house, or the three or more family house referred to as multi-family houses and usually, in fact, apartment or tenement houses. They agree also in the fact that the peak of residential construction in the country was in 1925. According to figures of the building and housing bureau based upon compilations of the F. W. Dodge Corporation residential property construction in that year in 36 States amounted to a value of $2,672,000,000 out of the total building construction that year of $5,822,200,000 in those States. There was a gradual decline in 1926 and 1927 and in 1928 37 States reported a total residential construction valued at $2,794,317,000. In 1929 these same 37 States fell to a record of only $1,932,728,000. That is a drop of over 30 per cent. For the whole of the 48 States, assuming the proportion in the States was the same, it would indicate a loss of over $1,100,000,000 for the country—enough to explain in great part the falling off in business before the market collapsed last fall.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics takes its returns from cities. Its records show that in 1925 residential buildings were constructed in 257 cities of the country to the value of $2,461,546,270. There has been a steady decline ever since. In 1928 the record for these cities was $1,859,429,751, while in 1929 preliminary figures show a record of less than $1,200,000,000—a drop of about 37 per cent. There is no question about the serious nature of the drop nor is there any question about the drop having been steadily coming.

When one enters upon a discussion of the causes in the decline in home construction, many factors in the situation appear. It is evident that with the drop in construction commencing as far back as 1926, prosperity is not a controlling factor nor are interest rates. The country was prosperous during 1927 and the early part of 1928, and interest rates were low—both without reference to fluctuations in stocks and otherwise. Nevertheless both these factors probably were the prime causes of the great drop in 1929—there certainly can not be much home building without at least a fair degree of prosperity, and in anything like normal times there is not likely to be much building at high rates of interest.

JUNE PAYS A VISIT.

Miss June came smiling into town,
"For tthirty days," the papers told,
"She'll visit people, up and down,
Renewing happy friendships old.
According to an ancient rule,
To welcome her with honor due,
We'll let the children out of school
To play the weeks of summer through."

Miss June went smiling round about,
And all were glad to see her come;
The peonies came bursting out,
The honeybees began to hum;
She scattered blossoms here and there,
And lovely presents, left and right;
The weary people everywhere
Welcomed her visit with delight.

She did not pass the cottage by
To seek the mansion of the great;
The humblest garden caught her eye,
She stopped to chat at every gate.
To patient women, old and gray,
The flowers they loved the best she gave;
And left, before she went away,

Oh, happy visitor who can
So much of beauty leave behind,
And so enrich the house of man,
That he new pride in it shall find.
I would of me, that men could say,
When ends my little visit here
And I at last must go away,
That I had helped their lives to cheer.

You Can't Train a Thoroughbred Colt by the Method Used to Break Wild Horses.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN the world was more cruel than it is now, the punishment of criminals never failed of its purpose.

The intention and desire of authority was simply to get revenge on the criminal's person and then dispose of him, and whether he was boiled in oil, drawn and quartered, left to starve in a dungeon or mercifully hanged, the purpose of law was achieved promptly and unfailingly.

But the development of civilization and the growth of compassion complicated matters.

"Revenge is brutal," said the civilized man, "and accomplishes no good purpose. We must threaten punishment in an effort to prevent crime, and we must somehow dispose of those enemies of society who can't be redeemed; but it isn't right to doom a man forever because of one wrongful act, and we should encourage the ordinary lawbreaker to repent and reform and return to good standing in society."

That was a decent resolution, but society made the fatal mistake of pouring new wine in old bottles.

It adopted a new theory of dealing with criminals without adopting a new plan.

It decided to reform the criminal and make him a good citizen, but it continued to use the old methods of revenge.

It continued to make the punishment fit the crime instead of the criminal; continued to cage first offenders with hardened rebels; continued to deny decent men the hope on which reform must depend.

Every man of sense knows that a boy who yields to temptation and disobeys his parents for the first time does not deserve the same punishment necessary to control a boy who disobeys habitually.

Every man of sense knows that the ignorant and feeble-minded youth who breaks a law does not deserve or require the treatment given a shrewd and hard-bitten criminal guilty of the same offense.

Every man of sense knows, also, that hope of better things is man's chief inspiration to do well, while those deprived of hope lose spirit and ambition and every incentive to be decent.

It should be clear, then, that society must find a new method of dealing with those law-breakers who can be redeemed.

Let the judge and jury decide only the matter of guilt, and then let a board of humane and practical men, free of all influence, decide whether the offender should serve one year or ninety.

Give every guilty man the reasonable hope of gaining liberty by proving himself worthy of it.

Only by tempering the wind to the shorn lamb and keeping hope alive can society do justice and save those who are worth saving.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

READYING UP THE SUMMER COTTAGE FOR THE TENANTS.

Scene: Summer cottage of the Jarvis T. Squidges. They have occupied it themselves well into July, have leased it for the rest of the season for $2,000, and are giving it the final inspection before turning it over.

Mrs. Squidge—Do you think everything's okay now for 'em to take possession?

Mr. Squidge—Sure. What can they expect for less than $1,500 a month?

Mrs. Squidge—I guess everything's all right. . . . I don't think I've forgotten to move out all the furniture that's any good.

Mr. Squidge—You better look around again. Last season after the people moved in you suddenly remembered you had left a really comfortable couch. It was too late to do anything about it.

Mrs. Squidge—Yes, and I left 'em a coffee pot that didn't leak!

• • • •

Mr. Squidge—How about all the beds?

Mrs. Squidge—What about 'em?

Mr. Squidge—Are you sure the mattresses are hard and full of lumps

Mrs. Squidge—All but one in the back bedroom closet. We've had it only ten years and it's still fit to sleep on. I'm sort of hoping they won't find it.

Mr. Squidge—These summer cottagers find anything. You better lemme take it home and put it in the cellar. Either that or open it and stuff in a few rocks and some broken glass so if they do find it they won't be able to sleep on it. How about that armchair over there?

Mrs. Squidge—I thought I might leave that.

Mr. Squidge (horrified at the idea)—It's got all four legs on it and can be sat in without fixing!

Mrs. Squidge—I know it. It's a shame to leave anything they can be comfortable in.

Mr. Squidge—Toss it in the attic and bring down that old bench with the back busted. And what about dishes Did you leave 'em enough to eat on?

Mrs. Squidge—Of course not. I was very careful to take away everything but three plates, four soup bowls, one cup, seven saucers and one fork.

Mr. Squidge—Good! That's just enough to worry 'em. Well, let's go.

Mrs. Squidge (as they lock the door)—Oh, Jarvis, I forgot one thing. I must take care of it at once.

Mrs. Squidge—What is it? I hope you didn't leave the gas stove in working order?

Mrs. Squidge—Not that, dear.

Mr. Squidge—Or the icebox fit to use?

Mrs. Squidge—Certainly not.

Mr. Squidge—What, then?

Mrs. Squidge (self-accusingly)—Last week I wrote Mr. Beemis, the plumber, to mend the hole in the bathtub and fix the three leaks in the kitchen pipes. Now that we've rented the cottage I'll have to call him at once and tell him not to bother!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Sojourner Finds It Hard to Get Library Card.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On Sunday, June 29, 1930, your editorial page carried an account of "Washington Libraries." Before coming to Washington I had heard something of the advantages to be derived from these libraries.

I came here from Portland, Ore., leaving in storage my own books, which have cost me over $1,000, and where the city has an up-to-date Carnegie Library which has issued me my second five-year membership card merely on my naming in my application two property owners of the city who knew me in a casual way and to whom no responsibility whatever attaches by virtue of their being named in that way. And my record with the library is clear.

Here in Washington I am confronted with the requirement to furnish a guarantor who will assume full responsibility for me at the library before I can be issued a three-year membership card. No other recommendation or record will suffice. That is the iron-clad rule, and I must either abide by it or do without the library membership privilege to which any citizen of the United States should be entitled.

True, I can go in as a reader, but that does not serve my need or convenience, since most of the books I want to use are of a technical nature and I must have them for at least the limit of time allowed.

My feeling as a result is to let the Washington libraries keep their antiquated books for the museums and preferred classes, rather than to allow them to class me as a stranger in need of money (or books) appealing to some one who does not know me to sign my note for money (or guarantee for books).

Citizen Still Hopes to See Square Deal Accorded to the District by Congress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I fear it will be a long time before full justice is accorded the District in its fiscal relationship with the Federal Government. But the attention of the whole country having been for a time attracted by the contest between House and Senate over the 1931 appropriation bill, it is safe to think that steady steps in the direction of a satisfactory arrangement may be taken from now on.

The extremely unfair and contemptuous attitude of the House in respect to District taxation, while unsatisfactory for the time being, will in the long run work to our advantage.

The fact that the Senate is strongly in favor of square dealing with the District makes it a certainty that justice will be done in the long run.

Even from the one-sided House committee's survey in the matter of District taxation we may hope for some degree of helpful enlightment.

The committee's report should mark the commencement of a fiscal fight to a finish on the part of the District and friends of the District.

Stalwart Republican Resents Interference of Church Organizations in Politics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see by The Post that the "Methodist Board of Temperance and Public Morals" has told the Republican party what it must do in 1932.

I am a Republican and a Methodist, but I think it is about time our church was freed from these fanatics and would-be dictators of the country. Their title indicates they would take charge of the "Public Morals" and decide National needs on the one question of prohibition It is to be hoped this question will be taken out of politics and the issues of a campaign be fought on something of greater National import. Should this and like organizations continue their fight on men of known ability and service rendered their country, these men will soon withdraw from interest in politics and further service.

I trust the Republican party will in the future, as it has in the past be able to do its own thinking.

Parcel Post and Franked Mail Are Causes of Postal Deficit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The papers give the information that the Postmaster General is contemplating asking Congress to increase first-class postal rates. This is in order to avoid the heavy annual deficit. Why does he not strike at the root of the evil? There are two causes of the deficit. One of them is the great loss in operating the parcels post business. Either make the parcels post self-sustaining, or let the Government go out of the freight business entirely. The great beneficiaries of the parcels post are the mail-order houses.

The second cause of the deficit is the tremendous amount of franked mail sent out by members of Congress and the several departments. Draw a line on the franking privilege, close out freight carrying, and there will be no deficit.

Old Army Man Says "Never Again," When He Sees Others' Pay Go Up and His Own Stationary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After years of absence from the vicinity of Washington, your Sunday edition seems like an old friend. In my next reincarnation, please have Congress put forth a little better news for the Army and Navy.

The tariff bill seems a reality, and the District also has gained something (I gather from your headlines).

Just now I am repairing a house in western New York. The same carpenters who received less than $3 a day in 1910 are receiving more than $9 now. I am glad for them and sorry for myself, because my pay schedule is in arrears. Words seem useless. Never again, after 42 years in the Army!

CHURCH GROUP HEAD HITS REFORM LAWS

YOUNG PEOPLE PRAISED

Cleveland, July 14 (A.P.).—An attack by E. J. Gallmeyer, Fort Wayne, Ind., president of the Walther League, Lutheran Church Society, on the practice of "tampering with the United States Constitution," was the outstanding feature of today's session of the league's national convention here.

Gallmeyer did not mention the prohibition amendment specifically, but by inference. "I am talking about tampering with the Constitution for the purpose of regulating personal conduct," he said. "If well-meaning and sincere people can tell us what to eat and to drink, what assurance have we that they will not very shortly tell us how, when and where we shall worship?"

The speaker declared that the "tampering" places the Constitution in jeopardy.

The Constitution should be left as a fundamental guide, rather than as a statute for regulatory laws, according to Gallmeyer's theory. He said the great majority of Lutherans hold to this view.

Gallmeyer also attacked religious bodies which he said used the "arm of the law" to compel the rest of the country to conform to their views.

"I thank God," he said, "that our ministry has not permitted itself to be paid to run the politics of the country, but rather that they have confined their work to being true shepherds of the flock, following the footsteps of the Good Shepherd Himself."

The Walther League president then urged the approximately 2,000 delegates who are attending the convention to avoid bigotry and to "hold the torch of freedom high."

He said the young people of today are "all right" and are superior intellectually to the young people of a generation ago, but that today's youth needs more reverence.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

Wings of the Senate these hot days, one's thoughts inevitably turn to the absence of Mr. Patrick Haltigan, reading clerk of the House. It is due to the absence of the House itself, of course, as Mr. Haltigan comes and goes with that body as the birds of a feather go with the weather.

But when the House is in session it is Mr. Haltigan's wont to come periodically to the Senate with tidings of what the House has done and what it would have the Senate do.

It is these visits that one misses so poignantly now. It is as if they were something of the past, so long has the House and Mr. Haltigan been gone, a pleasant association, a dimming memory of yesteryear.

* * * *

OTHER messengers frequently come over from the House to the Senate and there is also Mr. Joseph Latta who comes up from the White House with postoffice nominations and treaties and entanglements and everything. Senators and former senators, too, are frequently going in and out of the Senate doors.

But Mr. Haltigan's appearance is something that one does not easily forget. His is not only a visit. It is an occasion.

One sees now the big statute of him standing there in the aisle beside the Senate attendant who escorts him and gets recognition of his presence from the chair.

"MR. PRESIDENT," says the attendant, "a message from the House."

"The Senate will receive the message," intones Vice President Curtis.

Ah, it is then that one arises to the full significance of the occasion. It is then that the booming voice of Mr. Haltigan announces that the House has done this and done that to this bill. It is not that the House is not always doing something to bills. It is simply the manner in which Mr. Haltigan tells about it.

* * * *

AND when he has spoken his piece his massive frame bends in a deep and perfect bow. There are bows before the King and the Queen, there are bows wherever chivalry still reigns. But nowhere else is there quite such a bow as that of Mr. Haltigan.

Mr. Latta, from the White House, compared to Mr. Haltigan, is just an ordinary bower. Indeed, there is little ceremony about his visit at all. When he is announced he simply advances the right foot and says: "A message from the President of the United States," and in such a manner that he might as well just hold out the papers and say "Here."

With Mr. Latta it is but another trip up Pennsylvania avenue.

With Mr. Haltigan it is an event. There is majesty in his sweep and grace, in his turn as he withdraws from the chamber. There is a poetry of form. No one else could do it as well unless it is Senator Shortridge.

War Ace Honored By Highest Award

Congressional Medal of Honor to Be Given Rickenbacker.

(Associated Press.)

A reminder of a day above the lines near Billy, France, in September, 1918, went to Edward V. Rickenbacker yesterday in an announcement by the War Department that he had been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest distinction of its kind that can be given by the Government.

The World War ace, now a colonel in the specialist reserve, was cited "for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action."

"While on a voluntary patrol over the lines," the citation said, "Lieut. Rickenbacker attacked seven enemy planes. * * * Disregarding the odds against him, he dived and shot down two."

Col. Rickerbacker already holds the Distinguished Service Cross with seven oak leaf clusters. He was officially credited with having brought down twelve enemy planes and four enemy balloons.

Presentation of the Medal of Honor, ordinarily made by the President, is to come later at the convenience of Col. Rickenbacker.

One Killed in Colombian Riot.

The police fired into the crowd.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Lady Stanley Wins Position In Hollywood

Daughter-in-Law of Earl of Derby Will Enact Society Roles.

By JEAN ELIOT.

COINCIDENT with the arrival in New York of Lady Maureen Stanley, daughter-in-law of the Earl of Derby, the news is beginning to get about that she is to have a job as consultant on social procedure, precedence and precedent in the studios of Hollywood. When Lord Derby came to this country in the early summer to attend the Kentucky Derby, named by inheritance from the English Derby for one of his forbears, Lady Maureen Stanley came with him. However, instead of making the round of visits in which the Earl of Derby was involved, she went directly to California to look over Hollywood. Apparently she must have impressed film magnates with her ability, for now we find her Hollywood bound and prepared to stay at least for some months.

It is thought that Lady Maureen, who has a cosmopolitan background as well as an intimate acquaintance with London society and various European courts, will be able to contribute materially to the authenticity of the pictured pageantry of "society films." She landed in New York yesterday from the S. S. Majestic, which also had Helen Wills Moody as a passenger, fresh from gathering new tennis laurels abroad, and presumably will go at once to California.

It will be remembered that the Earl of Derby spent several days in Washington before going to Louisville to attend the Kentucky racing classic, and was the guest here of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace. The two men are old friends, Mr. Wallace's service as United States Ambassador to France having overlapped with Lord Derby's tour of duty as Great Britain's envoy at Paris and their acquaintance having been warmed to intimacy by a community of taste and interest.

Wife of Connecticut's Senator Proud of Seven Sons.

As soon as the Senate adjourns, Senator Hiram Bingham expects to go to Salem, Conn., where Mrs. Bingham is now established at their summer home, and in September he will take a trip to Samoa as a member of an important commission. With seven sons, all intelligent and ambitious in the offing, some member of Senator and Mrs. Bingham's family may usually be found figuring in the news. At the moment it is Mr. Hiram Bingham, jr., United States vice consul at Tokyo, who has just been advanced a step in the consular service, according to announcement made yesterday by the State Department.

Two of the Bingham boys are married, Mr. Woodbridge Bingham, whose wife was Miss Ursula Griswold, of New York, and Mr. Charles Tiffany Bingham, married a year ago to Miss Kathleen Howell, also a New York girl. But there are still five bachelors in the Bingham family. Mr. Allfred M. Bingham is preparing for a legal career at the Harvard University Law School and the other three lads, Brewster, Mitchell and Jonathan, are at Yale or Groton. Where Good Peaches Go

IT has been said by a whimsical international wit that when a good American dies he goes to Paris. In all truth, many Americans who have gone to Paris to live have become only memories here.

But where do the good peaches go?

We know where a lot of them go—the finest downiest, rosiest peaches that ever grew in a Southern orchard. When they are ripened just to the proper point they go into freezers filled with purest, richest Southern milk and cream, to become delicious parts of

The Velvet Kind

Made in immaculate sanitary plants, managed and manned by an efficient personnel—every ingredient of best obtainable quality.

Southern Dairies never stops at half measures in foraging the whole South for its prize products to be incorporated in the popular seasonal flavors of The Velvet Kind—the finest berries, fruits, nuts the land produces, and all those caterer's delicacies that are introduced in noggs and frozen puddings when the Autumn logs are lighted.

From its intimate touch with literally hundreds of communities through the South, this organization is able to draw upon the entire resources of this unequalled section to make ice cream for your own particular enjoyment.

This is ice cream making reduced to a science and elevated to an art. Again we submit a De Luxe Pint Package of Fresh Peach Ice Cream, is positive proof of Where Good Peaches Go.

Of course you know that all thrifty buyers take advantage of the annual summer sale at Mme. Ash's. It means a chance to pick up a wonderful suit at a great reduction, or two or three little hats which will finish out the summer, and do for your earliest wear next spring. It means buying original models in evening gowns and afternoon ensembles at prices within your means. When you see friends of yours wearing handsome costumes which it would seem to you an extravagance for them, just consider that they probably have shopped at Mme. Ash's during a sale event. Go in today, Connecticut Ave. at M St.

New Ideas In Photography

—are hard to find. If you are one who thinks there is no such thing it will please you to stop by Underwood & Underwood's this morning and see the display of exotic photographs exhibited in their window.

For those who are photographed frequently and who must necessarily have something different before they register a glimmer of interest, this type of photography is indeed a find.

Last week I told you that the summer discount would expire on the fifteenth, but I believe it is to continue another week. You can call up and find out about it, anyway. I do hope for your sake that it is still in effect, because I'd like to see you order $40 worth of pictures and pay only $30 for them. You save $10 a dozen. On $20 a dozen pictures you save $5. Do not delay to put in your order.

Fifth Magistrate Quits Under Fire

Ewald, of New York Police Courts, Indicted, May Face Bar Body.

New York, July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Magistrate George F. Ewald, under indictment charging mail fraud and conspiracy, resigned from the bench today rather than face charges before the Appellate Division that he had shown himself unfit to hold office. He is the fifth judge to quit under fire in this city since April, 1929.

Ewald's resignation arrived at City Hall a few minutes before noon, the time limit set by Chief Magistrate Corrigan. Following disclosures by United States Attorney Tuttle of Ewald's lenity toward defendants befriended by politicians, Mr. Corrigan told the magistrate Friday to get out or face trial for misconduct.

In spite of Ewald's resignation, it became known tonight, the New York City Bar Association is considering the advisability of disbarment proceedings against him. Mr. Tuttle said tonight he had sent "additional evidence."

Cyrus Eaton Cited In Merger Action

Hoyt Asserts He Sought to Buy Bethlehem Stock Before Agreement.

Youngstown, Ohio, July 14 (A.P.). Elton Hoyt, 2d, partner in Pickands, Mather & Co., Cleveland ore firm, testified today that Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland capitalist, sought to buy a large block of stock in Bethlehem Steel Corporation prior to the merger agreement between Bethlehem and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

Testifying in the suit brought by Myron C. Wick, jr., and the International Share Corporation as stockholders to enjoin the merger, Mr. Hoyt said he was informed by others that Mr. Eaton offered to buy into an 800,000-share issue which was underwritten by a banking syndicate.

Mr. Eaton, though not on record in the suit, controls International Share and is considered the chief merger opponent. Why he may have sought Bethlehem stock was not brought out in Hoyt's testimony.

Curb Review

New York, July 14 (A.P.). — The Curb Market gave one of the best displays of strength in weeks today, to the accompaniment of rumors of a revival of the long dormant bull party. Gains, as a rule, were moderate, but the advance embraced almost the entire list.

The advance was regarded in some quarters with caution, however, for the recently oversold condition of the market alone, it was felt, would naturally lead to a substantial rally. There was nothing in the day's meager business news to give any conclusive clew to trends. Although sales aggregated 627,900 shares, the largest turnover in three weeks, trading was still light, according to present-day standards.

Utilities were fairly active. Electric Bond & Share gained 2 points, and such issues as American Superpower, Middle West Utilities, United Light & Traction, and United Light A closed up 1 or more. American & Foreign Power warrants closed more than 3 up, and among the stocks that normally move widely Northern States A gained 7. Oils were largely neglected. Cities Service was firm, closing up ½, but Vacuum lost about 2.

Several of the industrials and specialties in which the market is thin showed wide moves. Aluminum Co. sold up 18¾ and then slipped back 4 from the top. White Star Refining, which has not traded in many weeks, sold at 74½, up 22½ from the last recorded transaction. On the other hand, Van Camp preferred, long dormant, appeared at 50, off 24½, and Consolidated Mining, at 199, off 34½.

Among the more active industrials Deere gained 4 and Driver Harris 8. Fox Theaters A was more active than in a long while, moving up a point to 10. Technicolor and Columbia Pictures each rallied 2. Newmont Mining sold up 6. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., a lightly traded issue, gained 11 points in a few odd-lot sales, perhaps in response to its June sales report, showing a gain of more than 8 per cent from June, 1929.

Investment trusts generally failed to join the advance. Trans-America sagged 1½ to another new low at 20½ and closed at 21¼. Goldman Sachs rose fractionally.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Crop damage reports from Canada and nearby States pushed wheat values upward as a rule today, but temporarily the market broke low price records.

The transient setback resulted from heavy sales in connection with a big movement of new winter wheat away from the harvest fields Southwest and West, and from movement of the spring wheat harvest in South Dakota. Export purchases of wheat appeared to be enlarging, however, and future delivery wheat offerings here were scarce as the day closed.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, ¾ to 1 cent per bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1¾ to 2 cents advanced, oats ½ of a cent off to ½ a cent up, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Capacity shown for rallying quick was an outstanding feature of the wheat market in the final transactions today. Fairly large export demand for United States wheat was in evidence, with higher premiums being paid at the Gulf of Mexico. No. 2 hard winter wheat there commanding 2½ cents over the price of September contracts. About 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat was also acknowledged as having been taken today for transatlantic shipment, and talk was current that export business is much larger than published estimates would indicate. Meanwhile, many traders were giving evidence of anxiety regarding advices of irreparable injury to the spring wheat crop Northwest, especially in Saskatchewan Province, Canada, and in Montana.

Saskatchewan messages received here told of a stretch of 300 miles between Moosejaw and Swift Current where as a result of heat and drought the spring wheat crop conditions are deplorable, with fears expressed that Saskatchewan's total yield would not equal last year's production. There were also dispatches at hand saying that from Gascoyne, N. Dak., to Terry, Mont., 80 per cent of the spring wheat acreage was seriously injured and from Terry to Glendive 50 per cent, many fields promising to return hardly enough for seed.

On the other hand today's total receipts of winter wheat at eight domestic points Southwest showed a surprisingly large total, 5,380 cars. It was partly news of this heavy total which at one stage brought about new low record prices today. Subsequent scarcity of speculative offers, however, resulted in a quick rebound of prices, and the finish was but ½ of a cent below the day's top point.

Corn scored a late rally as well as wheat. Continued dry weather was a factor all day in the corn market which, however, acted for the most part in line with wheat. Oats followed corn.

Notwithstanding downturns in hog values, provisions averaged higher as a result of buying orders from sources East.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—A more favorable view of the weather outlook for the South and relatively easy Liverpool cables appeared to be largely responsible for declines in cotton today.

July sold off to 12.77 and the new October contract to 12.53, making net declines of about 23 to 25 points and new low records for the season on these two positions. These prices brought in considerable covering, however, and the losses were partially recovered, with July closing at 12.90 and the new October at 12.69. The general market closed steady at net declines of 6 to 12 points.

The market opened barely steady at declines of 12 to 17 points in response to the lower Liverpool cables and private reports of rains or showers in the Eastern belt with lower temperatures. These initial offerings were quite readily absorbed, and the market held fairly steady during the middle of the morning on a belief that the showers reported had been insufficient, but buying was checked by the forecast for showers and lower temperatures.

The detailed weather reports covering conditions over the week-end showed continued high temperatures and comparatively little precipitation, but they failed to bring in much buying and the market broke during the early afternoon. Old October contracts sold off to 12.81 and the new December to 12.73, or back to nearly the previous low levels, under liquidation and scattered selling, part of which seemed to be coming from New Orleans. These prices brought in some trade buying, however, and after showing net losses of 19 to 26 points the market recovered partially during the last hour on covering. Last prices showed rallies of 6 to 14 points from the lowest.

Cable advices received here from Liverpool attributed the relatively easy showing of the market there to local and continental liquidation on reports of better weather in the South. The detailed weather reports showed maximum temperatures ranging from 100 to 114 degrees at a large number of stations in the South over the week-end; but according to some autuhorities, the recent hot weather has caused very little damage, and where there has been lack of growth or injury, it has been due chiefly to the need of rain.

Light and fluffy, yet healthful and sustaining, this tasty food can be prepared in a variety of appetizing ways. It cooks thoroughly in nine minutes. Avoid the common error of overcooking—although one or two minutes more may be allowed if special tenderness is desired. Your grocer has Mueller's or can get it for you.

MACARONI With Peas and Bacon

1 Package Mueller's Macaroni; 2 Tbsps. butter; 2½ Tbsps. flour; 2 Cups milk; ½ Tsp. salt; ¼ Tsp. pepper; ½ Cup grated cheese; 1 Can peas; 4 Slices bacon. Boil macaroni 9 min. in 4 qts. boiling water with 1 tbsp. salt. Drain. Make sauce of butter, flour, milk, seasonings. Add cheese. Cook peas. Cut bacon in squares and fry. Mix macaroni and sauce. THE GIRL IN THE AIR - -

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE.

Janet, conscious of the absurdity of her "premonition" to one so wholly unimaginative as Hugh, was surprised that he did not laugh at her.

"I'm not in the least curious, Janet," Hugh said after a time, "but did Tolbert include in his note the information that Dick and he were leaving for Boston?"

"Yes," Janet told him; "but why, Dick?"

"Don't ask me . . . He volunteered and Tolbert agreed. Did you anger him when he brought you into the city at noon?"

"Why do you ask?"

"Oh, I thought perhaps he had conceived the idea of flying the money shipment by way of exposing himself to suicide, so to speak. There's been so much shooting lately, you couldn't blame him for counting on more of it this time."

"Do you expect shooting this time, Hugh?"

"I do not. Nor does Tolbert; else he wouldn't have permitted Dick to go. . . . The gang's pretty well shot with Belter and Crell out, and even if there were any left with courage enough to carry on, they'll probably lay low until this last mess is fairly cool."

Janet was not convinced. "But what about Three-Fingers? He's at liberty and, if you ask me, he's got plenty of nerve."

"Yes," Hugh admitted, "but the intelligence system is down. There's no way he can know the shipment is being made with both Crell and Belter dead. . . . Besides, Tolbert is following an unusual plan. Instead of moving the shipment by regular plane, he's bringing it as far as our field himself. Then, day after tomorrow morning he plans to throw it in with the regular express stuff and shoot it down to Washington as samples. . . . Clever, what?"

Janet smiled sadly. "It was a clever plan to take that shipment down to New York in the amphibian, if you recall; but they got both you and the money."

"I know, Janet; but the gang was organized and functioning at high efficiency then. Now it's——"

"Never mind," Janet interrupted. "Your aren't persuading me because you aren't convinced yourself. . . . I don't know what it is, Hugh, but I can read you like a book and in the back of your head is something that you feel uneasy about. Can't you tell me what it is?"

Hugh's laugh was accompanied by a gesture of surrender. "I give up," he said lightly. "You wouldn't believe me on my oath; but I'm telling you again that Tolbert and Dick have little to worry about on this trip."

Mr. Deck's unceremonious entrance prevented Janet's comment to the effect that she didn't agree.

"You folks come in to supper while it's hot," Mr. Decker commanded amiably. "It's sort of plain food for aviators, but it's plenty substantial for talkers." With which he promptly left the room again.

Hugh reached for his coat and hat. "Thanks, but I've overstayed my time now. I've an engagement at 8 and I'm walking. Some other time——" He met Janet's incredulous gaze and grinned. "Really, I have, Janet. You'll forgive me this time, won't you?"

Janet shook her head slowly. "No," she told him firmly; "I won't forgive you, because I don't believe you. . . . Put your things on the couch and come on to supper."

Hugh held her eyes for a moment, then obeyed. "If I'm late," he told her, "I'll lay the blame on you."

"You won't be late," Janet informed him grandly, "because you aren't going anywhere. . . . Why are you trying to keep away from me, Hugh? I don't think I've ever needed to talk to some one more than I do tonight and you're my only chance. If you won't listen——"

Hugh said suddenly: "But I will listen. Good Lord! Don't you think I want to talk to you, too? But I've been butting in entirely too much lately, I almost lost your friendship entirely by talking too much."

Janet cupped her hand over his mouth. "No, you didn't. You only thought you did. . . . But come on before they eat everything up for us."

Just outside the dining room door, she stopped and faced him. "On your honor as a gentleman, have you an engagement tonight?"

Hugh raised his right hand. "On my honor as a gentleman," he repeated; "but not until 10 o'clock."

Janet laughed. "I hope you don't call on ladies at 10 o'clock," she teased.

"I do," he assured her. "I happen to be calling on Miss Sears."

Janet gasped, rather than said: "Oh. . . ." and opened the dining room door.

It was after eight when at last they left the table. Margaret and her mother remaining to clear the table, Mr. Decker had departed midway the meal to attend lodge.

"We can take a turn around the block for fresh air, or stay in the living room; take your choice," Janet offered, and promptly expressed her own preference by jumping on the couch.

Hugh took the hint and settled down beside her. "And now," he said, "you have something on your mind. . . . Is it about Tolbert?"

Janet wheeled on him. "Has Tolbert talked to you?"

"Oh, my, yes; plenty. But not about what you have reference to."

"No, no, Hugh. Don't tease now; this is terribly important to me. . . . Do you, or don't you know what I'm about to tell you?"

"I merely suspect, Janet. Having watched your every move and almost known your every thought for the past two weeks, I'd have to be blind to miss the really big episodes in your life, such—such as Tolbert's weakness. He's madly in love with you, of course."

"Is that all you know?"

"Until you asked that, yes; but now I know that he has asked you a rather personal question, and you——"

Janet said: "Yes, Mr. Smarty, and I what?"

"And you accepted him?"

"Yes, and no. I promised to tell him tonight. That's why he sent the note. But in my heart—yes, Hugh, I've accepted him."

Hugh said nothing. He had taken a pack of cigarettes from his pocket, presumably to extract one for a smoke; but now he held them by opposite corners and spun the package absently. His eyes were on his fingers, but were unseeing eyes.

Janet plucked the package from between his fingers. "If for no other reason, to satisfy convention," she chided, "you ought to wish we happiness."

"There are times," Hugh retorted, "when silence is more eloquent than words. . . . Could I wish you anything but happiness under any possible circumstances?"

"Hmm! . . . You aren't behaving very nicely, Hugh. I suppose you are struggling with the thought that he is considerably older than I. Is that so awful, Hugh?"

"Not having any standing with you for veracity, I hesitate to say that age has not, as I view the question, anything whatever to do with it. I am still so old-fashioned as to believe in love, Janet."

"And I," Janet returned quickly. "Before all else, Hugh—love. But love coming where there is a wide difference in age, where there is social standing, where, unfortunately, there is wealth, is so much out of place as to seem impossible; is that it?"

Hugh ignored the question. "Do I understand that you haven't given Tolbert a definite answer?"

Janet inclined her head slightly "In fact, no answer; unless, of course, he has been able to read my mind. He says in his note he will call me as soon as he returns tomorrow night. I expect to tell him then."

"And your mind is quite made up to accept his proposal, Janet?"

Janet studied Hugh's face closely. Beyond the suggestion of a frown marring the smoothness of his forehead, his face was a mask.

"I've answered that once, Hugh. Are you giving me an opportunity to retract? But don't misunderstand that, now. You must understand that I must have gone through a long, wearing process of thought. You wouldn't ask me how I arrived at the decision I have, and I won't volunteer the information beyond this: On his side is everything I have wanted all my life, which must be the equivalent of happiness; on my side is the knowledge that I can make him happy. Isn't that a fair exchange?"

Hugh got up and paced the floor He put a cigarette between his lips, stood up for an instant with a burning lighter, and resumed his restless walk. "There is but one fair exchange in marriage, Janet. Do you know what it is?"

"I'll let you tell me," Janet parried, knowing that she was about to receive a sharp thrust.

Hugh said in a low, firm voice: "It is love for love. Nothing else will do. It is not necessary that there should be equal love on both sides, for after marriage, where there is love at all, it can be leveled off. But when there is love on one side only, it is a miserable and ungodly match." . . .

For a time Janet watched him in silence. Then she asked quietly: "Why are you so positive that I don't love him, Hugh?"

"But I haven't said that you don't love him," Hugh said, irritably, standing before her. "I've merely tried to raise the qquestion. . . . I don't want to see you unhappy, Janet"——

"Why don't you be honest with me, Hugh, and tell me what you really think? . . . We aren't getting anywhere this way."

Hugh cried in an injured voice: "Why don't you be honest with me? I'm in an infinitely more uncomfortable position thab you are, but I've come as near the truth as I dare. Answer me one blunt question frankly and we will get somewhere"——

"Shoot," said Janet; "and you'll get the truth if I die for it."

Hugh towered above her. "Do you love Tolbert?" And then, as if ashamed that he had stopped to pry into her heart, he turned away with: "Don't answer me, Janet. It's none of my business"——

Janet caught his hand and pulled him down beside her. "Stupid!" she said, holding to his hand; "you were to ask a question to put our conversation on an honest basis; now why withdrw it?"

"It isn't a fair question," Hugh declared; "and it was indecent of me to ask it."

"I don't agree with you. It's a question I've faced a hundred times a day since I suspected Tolbert's feelings toward me. I ought to be able to tell you without hesitation, Hugh, that I do love him. But I'm putting honesty before loyalty just now. . . . I don't know, but I . . . think . . . I do. . . . Now, what?"

Hugh replied sagely: "I'd say it's too serious a matter to be uncertain about. You might wait a few months and see——"

"No, Hugh; you're an old dear, but you can't save me from this. I told him I'd give him his answer tomorrow night . . . I think we'll be happy, Hugh."

"If you aren't," Hugh returned, "it wont be because Tolbert dosen't do his best; he's honor itself."

Janet went immediately to her room when he had gone. When she was ready for bed, she casually picked up the book on practical flight training in which was the code, the last entry of which she had not yet translated.

She glanced at the symbols, closed the book with a bang and jumped into bed. She was too tired to bother with a mystery code tonight.

But her subconscious mind, never weary, accepted the problems she had unknowingly assigned to it, and before morning there came to her in the thin stuff of dreams two startling discoveries. One was the solution of the last entry in the mystery code. The other sent her to the telephone at four o'clock in the morning to call Hugh out of bed.

ANOTHER VICTORY
FOR THIS REGULAR STOCK MOTOR OIL!

CLOSE ON THE HEELS OF ITS ACCOMPLISHMENT AT INDIANAPOLIS MAY 30, CONOCO WINS 3RD, 4TH, AND 5TH PLACES AT ALTOONA AT BETTER THAN ONE HUNDRED MILES PER HOUR!

Frank Farmer, in a Miller Special, "placed" third with an average speed of 102.2 miles per hour. "Shorty" Cantlon, in a Miller-Schofield Special, was fourth with 101.5 miles per hour. "Speed" Gardner was fifth in a Miller Front Drive Special. All three used CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil in this convincing demonstration of the qualities of this regular "stock" motor oil. At Altoona, as at Indianapolis, this was the first time that a stock oil had placed so high in the finish of the race.

The story of the Altoona race cannot be told without reference to the accomplishment of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil at Indianapolis. For it was in that 500-mile classic that the stamina of this new oil was impressed on the racing fraternity. After observers had seen the oil at the close of the Indianapolis race; after they had observed its full body and good color as it came from Dave Evans' motor, the word went out that CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil had displayed the qualities necessary to solve the lubrication problems of racing motors. CONOCO had earned the respect of this most skeptical group—and earned it fairly.

In view of the Indianapolis results, it was only natural for a majority of the drivers at Altoona to choose CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil for America's fastest competitive race.

And as these cars whizzed around the boards at Altoona on June 14th, CONOCO again proved its worth in a field previously dominated by castor blends—a field which other stock oils have repeatedly tried to enter without success!

So chalk up another victory for CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil, close on the heels of Indianapolis . . . a victory won with the same stock Germ-Processed oil that you can buy at any Red Triangle station.

These CONOCO victories have a definite meaning to every one who drives a car. They substantiate every claim that was made for it when the oil was introduced last November.

You can experience the safety and economy of this oil by stopping at the next Red Triangle Station and asking for:

STOCK PRICES RALLY IN ACTIVE TURNOVER

Prominent Shares Advance Two to Seven Points; U. S. Steel Rises.

CALL LOAN RATES EASE

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Operations for the advance were pursued vigorously on the stock exchange today. The move, sponsored by a small group of bullish professionals, rallied prominent shares 2 to 7 points, with larger gains in numerous specialties.

Wheat and corn firmed after early heaviness, but cotton was easy, July and new October making new lows for the season prior to a partial recovery that reduced the net losses to nominal size. Bonds lost much of their recent strength, but the market managed to hold firm on a reduced turnover.

Saturday's rally in stocks apparently went far toward strengthening confidence in the bull camp, which gained courage as today's session progressed. The average advance of 90 leading issues was 3.4 points and the volume of trading increased to around 2,750,000 shares, the largest of the month, although small compared to recent standards. There was, however, little or no evidence of an extensive public participation and the market seemed to be dominated by the professionals who believed that profits would come more easily on the long side.

The market opened irregularly higher and became stronger as the morning progressed. Reactionary tendencies crept in around noon, but the list regained its momentum before the forenoon improvement had been lost and gradually extended its gains to the close.

American Tobacco Gains.

Many of the old-time pool favorites were active. Vanadium, Worthington Pump, Radio-Keith-Orpheum, J. I. Case, Allied Chemical, Electric Auto-Lite and Columbian Carbon were bid up sharply. Efforts toward extending the rise were furthered by the strength in American Can, General Electric, American Tobacco, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, North American, Consolidated Gas, U. S. Steel, Atchison, Union Pacific, Nickel Plate, New York Central and Houston Oil, which rallied 2 to 5 points. Late in the day the amusement shares and the motor accessories were under accumulation.

Money was plentiful and call loans eased to 2 per cent from the renewal rate of 2½. Few dealers quoted slightly firmer charges on the funds, which have long been at nominal levels, but commercial paper remained unchanged.

American Telephone's financial statement reported small increases in net for the first half year and for the second quarter, with per share earnings slightly below the corresponding figures for a year ago, due to larger capitalization in 1930. Walter S. Gifford, president of the company, said that although the volume of general industrial activity in the first six months continued "distinctly below" that of 1929, "comparisons with performances in 1928 have not generally made an unfavorable showing.

Record A. & P. Business.

Another report of interest to Wall street was the announcement of record June sales by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. Its business last month showed an 8 per cent gain over June, 1929.

Otherwise, there were no outstanding developments in the news and the market was left to its own guesses as to the immediate future of commodity prices and business. Commission house sentiment was more bullish than in some time, although some of the letters emphasized the uncertainty that still lurks in the commodity situation.

Stocks up 2 to 3 points net included American Telephone, United States Steel, American Can, General Electric, Sears-Roebuck, Radio-Keith-Orpheum, Electric Power & Light, New York Central, Fox and Union Carbide. Such shares as Du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, Nickel Plate, Stewart Warner, North American, R. H. Macy, Eastman Kodak and Johns-Manville gained 4 to 5; Norfolk & Western, Vanadium, J. I. Case, Electric Auto Lite and Worthington Pump 7 and Allied Chemical 9.

Foreign exchange rates were firm. Both sterling cables and the French franc improved slightly.

UPWARD MOVEMENT OF BONDS SLACKENS

Standard Carrier and Utility Issues Remain Firm in Irregular Session.

FOREIGN SECTION ACTIVE

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—The forward movement of bonds was practically halted in a dull and irregular session today, with some of the most popular, investment issues failing to hold the high marks reached in the sharp rise last week.

The greater portion of the list of standard railroad and utility bonds was steady to firm in a thin market, and where recessions occurred, the losses were small, reflecting some profit taking. Convertible rail issues were strong in moderate activity. Utilities moved irregularly higher, some touching new peaks for the year. The rest of the domestic list moved indifferently, with some wide fluctuations.

United States Governments were steady. In contrast with the domestic list, foreign bonds were relatively active and strong, as announcement was made that the $25,000,000 American portion of the Austrian government international loan of 1930 would be offered tomorrow. The loan is the first by the Austrian government since 1923 and is offered at 95 to yield 7.40 per cent, carrying an interest rate of 7 per cent.

Rail Convertibles Active.

The greatest activity among railroad bonds was in convertible issues, and the St. Paul adjustment 5s was the only issue which failed to reflect the better tone of the share market. The feature of the group was the Atchison 4½ which gained 2 points on a heavy turnover. Among lieri issues the market for legal bonds was steady, for the most part, thin.

Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy 4½s sold at new highs in a thin market. Canadian Pacific 4s, Erie 5s, Louisville & Nashville 4½s, Union Pacific 4s and Atchison 4s, eased. Issues of Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Southern Railway were steady.

Advances were mixed with losses in the utility list. Cincinnati Gas 4s, Northern States Power 5s, Pacific Gas 4s, Detroit Edison 5s, reached new highs. American Telephone issues moved irregularly lower.

Paramount-Publix Rises.

Some wide fluctuations occurred among the rest of the domestic list. Warrant bonds loomed large in the day's dull session. Pathe warrant 7s lost ½ point, while Paramount-Publix 7s gained about the same and Loew's warrant 6s rose 2½ points. A heavy turnover occurred in Transcontinental Oil warrant 6½, which gained ¼ to equal the year's high.

The upward trend was maintained by foreign issues, although some soft spots developed in the late trading. Australian bonds were under pressure and the 5s lost more than a point. Brazil 6½s dropped 1½ points. Popular European governments were dull and steady. German 5½s continued their climb with ¼ point gain and are now selling less than a point under their offering price of 90.

United States Governments were irregular.

FLEMING STRESSES LIQUIDATION NEEDS

Adequate Secondary Fund Is Important, Writes Bank President.

SANDERS TO ENTERTAIN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Writing in the July issue of the American Bankers Association Journal on "The Way to Profit From the Stock Market Crash," President Robert V. Fleming of Riggs National Bank states the outstanding lesson to be learned from that disaster is the need for the banker at all times to keep his institution liquid to meet unexpected demands arising from causes and conditions beyond his control.

"With respect to collateral loans," states Mr. Fleming, "we should require diversification and marketability in the collateral taken and insist also upon a wide margin of safety. In determining this margin of safety, the banker is a better judge than the customer, but can only be sustained through the full cooperation of the banks in the community."

Regarding the question of liquidity, Mr. Fleming stresses the desirability of every bank building a proper secondary reserve. Whether a bank be a member of the Federal Reserve system or not, he thinks it would be well to build an adequate secondary reserve of Government bonds, commercial paper eligible for rediscount and a well-selected list of high-grade bonds of short maturity.

District National Bank Dinner.

A dinner was given last night at the Congressional Country Club by officers and directors of the District National Bank to its employes in appreciation of new business secured under its recent business development campaign, which closed July 12. The drive began April 12, and the goal was $1,000,000, which was to be made in cash deposits, rental of safe deposit boxes and new trust accounts. The score attained was well in excess of that amount and the results obtained were most gratifying to the officers and directors.

A silver cup was presented by Col. Robert N. Harper, chairman of the board of directors, to the team securing the greatest amount of honor score points, Joshua Evans, jr., president of the institution, being captain of the winning team, assisted by William H. Martin, one of the directors.

President Evans then presented prizes to the employes, the first prize, an extra week's vacation, being awarded to George See, who also received a cash prize. Other prize winners were Herman O. Sikorra, Gary W. Hauptman, Walter Koons and Paul Gardner, who received cash prizes and were winners in the order named.

New California Packing Issue.

A new issue of $15,000,000 California Packing Corporation 10-year convertible 5 per cent gold debentures at 100 and accrued interest yielding 5 per cent is announced today by Dean Witter & Co., Guaranty Co. of New York, Continental Illinois Co., and Bancamerica-Blair Corporation.

Effective July 17, the Bank of Commerce & Savings will close at 3 p. m. on weekdays instead of 5 p. m., with the exception of the first, second, fifteenth, sixteenth and last days of the month, when it will remain open until the latter hour. Saturday business hours will be as heretofore 8:30 a. m. and 12 m.

Vice President Joseph Sanders, of the Bank of Commerce & Savings, will entertain its officers and directors at his country home over the week-end.

Norman E. Towson, an assistant treasurer and the manager of the foreign department of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., has returned from a two-weeks' vacation at Charles Town, W. Va.

Vice President and Cashier James A. Soper, of Lincoln National Bank, has returned from a two-weeks' vacation at Old Orchard, Me.

Peglet

RECENT events give rise to a premonition that the legislatures which legalized prize fighting in various States under ornate supervisory arrangements in the last ten years presently will withdraw this sanction, relegate the business to its natural, outlaw status and set the police on the boys. That has always been the way of it.

When the devil is sick, the devil a monk would be, as in that period just after the war when the boys made pious promises not to cheat, fake or chisel and His Honor, Mayor James J. Walker, then Tammany leader in the New York Legislature, impressed by all this, and a natural enthusiast anyway, put through the New York prize fighting law.

I recall an elaborate public luncheon at the Waldorf Hotel about the time that Mr. Walker's bill of amnesty was passed, restoring the prize fight trade to citizenship in the State of New York after a long spell of penance, poverty and shame. The luncheon was spread at the expense of a list of prosperous suckers who had been lured into a grandiose paper organization called the International Sporting Club, which was to exert a fine moral influence in the racket and preserve it from the foul schemes of greedy and dishonest mercenaries.

Sauve Carpentier Was a Guest.

Georges Carpentier, who had come to the United States to meet Jack Dempsey on the Jersey side in the first of the million-dollar prize fights, was a guest at the board, handsome and suave, and probably reflecting on the gullibility of those remarkable Americans.

When his honor arose to speak, he fixed the company with a challenging glare and told them that he was giving the grand old game back to them only on condition that they keep it pure and chivalrous, and he wound up on a warning note, a threat to cancel it out again at the first evil act.

There were various sorts of people there, including notorious chiselers and a numerous delegation of those substantial but sporty rich men of the town who like to relax from the rigors of extreme social propriety in the company of the prize fight crowd. They listened gravely and the boys at whom his Honor's threat was directed point blank stared solemnly into their coffee and puddled their raspberry ice with their spoons.

But Mr. Walker Is a Fan.

It was not a jollification. The boys had been doing business in a fugitive way for small returns for several years and it was fine to be admitted to open practice again. But Mr. Walker had dwelt long on the awful thought that one fake, one business fight, would undo it all again. This was serious.

I suppose Mr. Walker at the time really had some idea that under strict supervision the business could be kept as honest as, say, the profession of law, or politics, which was not asking much. The men who were to be appointed commissioners were supposed to be independent, beholden to nobody socially or politically, and of such shrewd intelligence that no thieving or scheming, however petty, could escape detection and retribution.

Mr. Walker is a prize fight addict of such enthusiasm that even if he were still a song writer with no royal inclosure at his disposal at big fights, he would undoubtedly be found in the best seats he could buy from the scalpers. Feeling as he did about prize fighting, he undoubtedly had personal motives in restoring the prize fight business to the boys. He wanted to see some fights.

Grandeur of Business Worst Handicap.

But the boys have made millions of dollars since then and when the devil is well, the devil of a monk is he.

The very grandeur of the business has been its worst handicap in the effort to go straight, for the tremendous returns have drawn into it a class of new boys with criminal tendencies and records that verify the dictum of the New York police inspector, Coughlin by name, who used to remark that the only reformed gangsters were in the graveyards.

The prize fight commissions everywhere, unable to regulate the racket,

Macks Down Browns, 9-7, In 11th

Special to The Washington Post.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 14.—Philadelphia increased its American League lead over Washington to two games here today by defeating the Browns, 9 to 7, in eleven innings, while the Nats were losing another game in Detroit. The Mackmen now have won four straight games and the Browns have lost that many in a row.

The Browns suffered ill luck when Rip Collins, who had pitched four-hit baseball and was winning, 3 to 2, for six innings, strained his back and was removed under fire in the seventh, after Miller walked and Dykes doubled.

Gray, sent to the hill at this point, was easy prey for his former mates. Boley singled to drive in Miller and Dykes. Boley died making a feint for second, but Earnshaw singled and Bishop walked, which together with a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly by Haas and Cochrane's single gave the A's two more runs. In the Brown's seventh, after Melillo died trying to stretch his double, Gullic's single was wasted.

Quinn Replaces Earnshaw.

Paving the way to the Browns' three runs in the eighth which tied the score, O'Rourke walked and Badgro singled and Quinn replaced Earnshaw. Kress doubled over Haas' head, O'Rourke and Badgro scoring, but Kress was nailed at third base. Ferrell followed with a single and Grove went to Quinn's rescue. Schulte walked. Melillo fanned, but Gullic singled to score Blue, running for Ferrell, with the knotting run.

Haas, first up in the tenth, bounced a hit over Kress to center. Cochrane sacrificed, Kimsey ignoring a chance to force Haas, who then advanced to third when Simmons rolled out. Foxx singled, Haas scoring.

In the Browns' tenth, Kress fanned, but the third strike got away from Cochrane, Kress reaching first. Manion flied out, but Schulte sent Kress to third on a single. Kress scored on a wild pitch.

Boley Hit by Pitch In Eleventh.

Dykes was out leading off the eleventh. Boley was hit with a pitched ball. Grove singled and Bishop doubled, Boley scoring. Grove dented the plate with the last run of the game on a sacrifice fly by Haas.

Both McNeeley and O'Rourke walked with one out in the Browns' eleventh, whereupon Badgro fanned for the third time and Kress forced O'Rourke for the final put out. The fourth and last game of the series is scheduled tomorrow.

Miss Carstairs' Boat Hits 90-Mile Speed

Gravenhurst, Ontario, July 14 (A. P.).—Miss Marion B. Carstairs, Great Britain's entry in the Harmsworth Trophy races at Detroit, drove her speed boat Estelle IV at a speed of 90 miles an hour Saturday on Lake Muskoka, she reported today. This is believed to be almost 20 miles an hour faster than any boat has been driven before in Canadian waters.

Seeded Men Extended In Clay Courts Tourney

Rockhill Tennis Club, Kansas City, July 14 (A.P.).—Several seeded players with national ranking had no easy time today in the preliminary rounds of the twenty-first annual national clay courts tennis tournament.

Frank X. Shields, New York City, a nationally ranked player and a seeded entry, faced Teddy Eggman, St. Louis, ranking No. 5, a half hour after he had arrived at the club, and needed all his vicious stroking to win, 6—4, 6—4.

J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., another tournament favorite and ranking but one notch below Shields nationally, met a slight blond boy player of Kansas City, Nelson McCininch, who played a game worthy of a much older player, but lost to Hall, 2—6, 4—6.

Herbert L. Bowman, of New York, nationally ranked No. 17 and a seeded entry, had trouble with the comparatively unknown Paul Halpine, of Omaha, in the first set, but took the match, 6—4, 6—1.

Mandell Impressive In Final Boxing Drill

Orangeburg, N. Y., July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Feeling that his condition and skill require no further polishing, Sammy Mandell decided today that he would not box tomorrow. His glove stunts today, therefore, marked his last appearance against an opponent until he steps through the ropes on Thursday night at the Yankee Stadium to defend his lightweight title against Al Singer.

The lightweight king went below the lightweight limit of 135 pounds today when he jumped on the scales after his training stunts. He will be able, he said, to keep close to that mark until the afternoon of the fight. He will weigh in probably at the 134½ figure.

There were many at the ringside of Sammy's final glove session today who marveled at the improved boxing ability, speed and apparent strength that the champion embraced. It was by far the most impressive glove drill of his training period and showed him moving around with grace and agility, stabbing with that educated left and crossing accurately with his right.

Mandell plans to remain here until Wednesday to rest and on the evening of that day will depart for New York.

Goslin in Hospital With Appendicitis

St. Louis, July 14 (A.P.).—Goose Goslin, St. Louis Browns' hitting ace and star outfielder, will be missing from the line-up for several days at least as result of an attack of appendicitis which sent him to a hospital today. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club surgeon, said Goslin was in no immediate danger and an operation probably would not be necessary.

WINS GOLF TITLE FROM MOTHER

William T. Beats Hot Toddy In Arlington Park Feature

CHICAGO, July 14 (A.P.).—William T. won the West Shore Purse, the best offering on today's card at Arlington Park. Hot Toddy was second and Buddy Bauer third. The race was an allowance for 4-year-olds and upward over the 1-mile, out of the chute, distance and was worth $1,300 to the winner, which made the journey in 1:37 flat. William T. paid $21.94 for $2 tickets.

Outpaced for the first six furlongs while Ambrose reserved him off the pace, William T came with a great rush through the stretch, wore down the leaders and was up to win in a hard final drive by a neck. Hot Toddy, under pressure, throughout, slipped through on the inside at the far turn, went into a brief lead at the final eighth, but could not withstand the winner and took second money by three lengths from Buddy Bauer. The latter finished strongly to take third money by four lengths from Pigeon Hole.

Bunch of Lillies Takes Race.

Latonia, Ky., July 14 (A.P.).—The colors of J. W. Parrish were carried to victory in the Owl's Nest Purse, at a mile and 70 yards for 3-year-old maidens, the feature event of the afternoon, when his Bunch of Lillies, by Pennant, beat Southland Toy. Rushing and nine others to the wire. Jockey F. Chiavetta had the mount on the winner and put up a rousing finish. Watch Classic broke on top and opened up a long lead midway down the back stretch, but quit badly at the three-quarters. Rushing came fast and took a brief command at the stretch bend, where Southland Toy and Bunch of Lillies joined him. A stretch battle resulted between the three. Bunch of Lillies finally got up to win by the smallest of margins.

Sun Mission Wins At Empire.

Empire City Race Track, N. Y., July 14 (A.P.).—Dr. Irving Jacobs' 4-year-old, Sun Mission, outsider in a three-horse race, won the Brookville Handicap, mile and a sixteenth, the best offering on the card here today. His victory was hard-earned, but it clearly proved he was best at the weights. Lahor, 3-year-old, carrying 121 pounds, ran a game race to finish second, with Perkins third.

Lahor, which was under tremendous handicap in the weight, conceding 8 pounds by the scale to Sun Mission and 15 pounds to Perkins, rushed to the front, galloped along with Wiener, who had the mount, saving ground at every stride. Lahor breezed along in front, leading by a length or so to the middle of the turn, where Sun Mission moved up. They turned into the stretch on almost even terms, but in the final drive Sun Mission drew away to win by half a length. Lahor beat Perkins eight lengths for the place.

Helen Wills, in "Old Dress," Reaches Gotham, Homesick

NEW YORK, July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Helen Wills Moody, four times winner of the women's singles at Wimbledon, arrived in New York today on the White Star liner Majestic, which carried 624 passengers. She will take the first fast train for San Francisco, where her husband, Frederick Moody, jr., is working so hard, she said, that he was unable to come to New York to meet her.

She has been accompanied on her previous trips to Europe by her mother, but this time traveled alone. "I'm married now, you know, and don't need a chaperone," she said—and the result was that she was homesick.

"I've always had my mother sitting on the sidelines, and I missed her this trip."

"I like to be called Mrs. Moody," she told the reporters. "In Paris I was Mrs. Moody-Wills; in England Mrs. Wills-Moody. I'm not a professional, and so I'm Mrs. Moody, glad to be going home to my husband."

She said she was disappointed that Miss Elizabeth Ryan was not chosen as her doubles partner. "I think together we would have won the doubles," she said.

Dressed in what she termed an "old dress," the tennis star said she made no clothes purchases abroad and only a few purchases of things for her home. She was dressed today in a navy blue suit, blue coat with fox collar and a white straw hat.

Second Assistant Engineer Frank Clarke obtained her autograph on a sketch in color he did of her while she played deck tennis on the trip over. The picture, which drew the admiration of all who saw it in the hurried moments of good-bys, will hang in the main salon.

Bobby Jones Wildly Hailed, Atlanta Parading in Honor

ATLANTA, Ga., July 14 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones, all highest of golf, came home today to receive the greatest reception in the history of Atlanta.

And, too, Bobby wanted to hear little Bobby 3d, whistle.

Down through the city's main thoroughfares atop an open car, Bobby rode to the cheers of thousands. Street urchins and millionaires added their voices to the outpouring of the city's hero worship.

Bobby's father and wife rode with the champion. The little Jones tots were in another car.

Hours earlier than expected, Daddy Bobby had slipped into town and was with the youngsters while newspapermen tried to locate him without result until the start of the parade. He was listening to the whistle that little Bobby told granddaddy to tell daddy about up in New York.

The parade to the City Hall, where Mayor Ragsdale presented Bobby with a scroll and a golden key, was decidedly democratic. Soldiers in olive drab followed brilliantly costumed drum and bugle corps, while pretty women golfers in a huge white tallyho added charm to the show. Uncle Sam and John Bull rode in an ancient victoria drawn by two mules and Negro caddies beamed widely as they smiled on "Mr. Bob," who "brought home de bacon."

Bobby didn't start with the parade, but joined it and proceeded a block. From the Capital City Club, Bobby and his party entered the official automobile, preceded by a truck carrying the British open and amateur and American open trophies, guarded by four well-known Atlantians.

Ticker tape tossed from the tops of skyscrapers looked as if the sunny South had seen a miracle—a snowstorm in July. Every office building window was filled.

It was a big day for the Negro caddies. Each division carried a banner in typical language of the dark-skinned golf bag carriers and the fa-

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

DETROIT, Mich., July 14.—Uhle fanned Myer on three pitched balls opening the game and had two strikes called on Rice when the veteran outfielder slashed a triple down the right-field line.

Funk came in fast to make a great try for Judge's Texas double in the first. He dropped the ball but picked it up in time to nip Harris, on first at the time, as he was trying to register on the blow.

West came in at full speed to make a sensational catch of Funk's low liner in the home first. Johnson, on first by virtue of a walk, was almost doubled up, for he did not think the catch would be made and was almost to second when he discovered his mistake. West, however, was in no position to make an accurate throw.

Funk made a nice catch of Spencer's pop just back of second to end the Nats' second round.

Johnson coaxed a second consecutive pass off Hadley in round 2, walking on four successive balls after Uhle had singled with one dead. This, as was the case in the previous walk, figured in the scoring.

Brown, although not a great hitter, took Hadley's place at the tee opening the third and fanned, then continuing in the game as the boxman. Johnson decided to use Brownie as the pinch hitter so as to save his others in case they would be needed in the midst of a rally.

Koenig went over almost behind second for Rice's liner in the third, taking it with his gloved hand and easily doubling up Myer, who had walked.

Cronin turned in a nice play when he went over toward the middle sack to scoop up Stone's tricky grasser opening the home third.

Desautels misjudged Judge's high foul in the fourth and then dived for the ball, grabbing it just as it was about to hit the ground.

Uhle opened the home fourth with his second straight single and then helped Myer make a double play on Johnson's tap by running right to the Nat second sacker to be touched.

Stone went smack up against a pile of lumber against the stands in left to fasten himself on the end of Bluege's foul fly opening the fifth session.

Uhle walked both Spencer and Brown with one gone in the fifth, but no harm was done his cause, for Myer hit into a snappy double play, McManus to Gehringer to Alexander.

Bluege made a leaping gloved-hand catch of Stone's high bounder to make the third out of the Tigers' fifth.

Battalino-Fernandez Bout Delayed a Day

Hartford, Conn., July 14 (A.P.).—The featherweight championship between Bat Battalino and Ignacio Fernandez, scheduled for tonight in Hurley Stadium, was postponed until tomorrow night today, when a heavy shower of rain swept over the city.

Although the match was postponed, Battalino weighed in at 125½ pounds this afternoon, while Fernandez, the challenger, scaled an even 126, the division limit. The boxers will not be compelled to weigh again tomorrow.

U. S. Chess Players Victors in Germany

Hamburg, Germany, July 14 (A.P.).—The United States Chess Team today defeated Iceland in the second round of the team tournament of the International Chess Federation by the score of 2½ to ½ with one game adjourned. F. J. Marshall defeated E. Giefer in 40 moves and I. Kashdan won from A. Asgeirsson in 47 moves. H. M. Phillips drew with W. Thorvaldsson in 34 moves and the game between J. A. Anderson of St. Louis and J. Gutmundson was adjourned in an even position after 42 moves.

Dr. Alexander Alekhine, world champion, played his first game for France today, defeating Baratz of Roumania. In this match France leads by 2—0, with two games adjourned.

England defeated Norway by 3½ to ½. The other matches were unfinished.

Adjourned games from the first round of the international team chess tournament were played off this afternoon. France scored in the match with the United States by 2½ to 1½. In addition to the draw by F. J. Marshall, drawn games were also credited to I. Kashdan, of New York, and J. A. Anderson of St. Louis. H. M Phillips, of New York, lost to M. Voisin, of Paris.

The Nationals started off by giving Hadley a one-run lead in the first, getting only about 50 per cent value from a triple, sacrifice fly, single and double, but the Washington pitcher had one of his off days when he retired at the end of the second in Brown's favor, the Bengals were out in front with five runs to spare, and to all intents and purposes the ball game was over.

Myer Opens Game By Fanning.

Myer fanned to open the game, but Rice lashed a triple down the first-base line and Cronin quickly scored him by poling a long fly to center. Harris followed with a single but was out at the plate when he tried to score on Judge's Texas league double to center.

This did not seem to worry the Tigers, for they came back in their half with an onslaught that netted three runs, the result of an opening pass to Johnson, doubles by Gehringer and Stone and Alexander's single. In the next session three more counters were molded, again with the need of but three hits. The big blow of this round was a double by Alexander, which cleared the filled bases with two out after a walk and two singles had put the runners on.

Brown relieved Hadley starting the third and he and Uhle staged a fine duel until the Nats scored two more in the sixth, with neither team seriously threatening until this splurge. Rice opened this rally by scratching a single past Koenig and went to third on Cronin's double to left. Harris fanned and Judge lofted to short left, but West came through with a liner which hit the second sack and cleared the bases.

Brown in Trouble In Seventh.

Brown found himself in trouble for the first time in the seventh. He issued his first pass to Funk and the latter was propelled to third on Gehringer's single to left. Alexander picked this spot to lace out his fourth successive safety, while a useful out off McManus' bat helped another runner to score before Brown could put on the brakes.

In the eighth, it looked as though the natives would score again when Desautels led off with a single and Uhle was safe on Myer's error. An out let the Tiger catcher take third, but some fast fielding turned Funk's hard-hit grounder to Brown into a double play, on which the decision at first was mighty close.

As a dying gasp, the Nats scored one marker in the ninth, but this was more or less of a gift. A walk, Judge's single and another walk filled the runways with none dead and put it up to Shires and Loepp as pinch hitters. The former missed getting a Texas leaguer by inches, but Loepp fanned. Uhle then forced in a run by passing Myer, but the game ended when Rice's best was a roller to Gehringer.

Griffith Buys Fischer, Newark Southpaw Ace

Detroit, Mich., July 14.—The deal made by the Nationals this morning, whereby Pitcher Carl Fischer is obtained from the Newark Internationals in exchange for Pitcher Myles Thomas and a sum of money, said to be approximately $17,500, is simply another case of Clark Griffith, Washington Club owner, gambling on a pennant. In 1924 he spent $50,000 for Earl McNeely under the same conditions, and, it will be remembered, the "Earl of Sacramento" added the punch which enabled the Nats to win the flag.

Fischer's case is slightly different, however, for Manager Walter Johnson does not expect to use this flinger regularly, but the Nats' leader

BENNY LEONARD SEES SINGER AS NEXT CHAMPION

Former King Of Division Enthused

Praises Challenger After Opposing Him in Ring.

Can Box Well, Also Likes to Fight, Says Ex-Champion.

By BENNY LEONARD

DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., July 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Little Al Singer, the boy they are calling a "second Benny Leonard," which compliment to me does not seem fair to Singer, for reasons that I will explain later, has a wonderful chance to win the lightweight championship of the world from Sammy Mandell in the Yankee Stadium next Thursday night.

I have watched Singer in his training workouts here, and I have boxed with him and talked with him. Singer can box beautifully. I know, because he boxed that way with me. We went two rounds, and then we practiced various tricks of the game and discussed his boxing. I pointed out to him spots in which I believed he could improve and stressed the things he did with the gloves that I believe are his strongest points.

Clad in the boxing paraphernalia which Hussell Levy, Singer's trainer, supplied me with, and wearing a pair of Al Singer's shoes, Al and I squared off and went at it top speed.

Surprised Singer With Speed.

When the bell rang I began feinting Singer. We worked very fast, for Al is a fast mover. I figured to go at a great clip for a couple of rounds and Singer expressed surprise that I was "such a fine sparring partner."

The boy boxed very well, better, I think, than he had done with his regular sparring partners. I remarked it, and so did his trainer and Hymie Caplin, his manager.

"See how nicely you can box when you put yourself to it," I remarked; "you haven't made one false move in that round we just finished."

We worked together for three-quarters of an hour.

"You handle yourself very easily in there," complimented Singer. "How is it you do that? Were you always an easy boxer, or did you acquire it by fighting?"

Comparison Unfair To Singer.

And that raised just the point I want to make. It explains why I think it is unfair to Singer to expect him to be as the public remembers I was when they call him a "second Benny Leonard." The fans remember me as I was at the very height of my career as active champion of the world, when I had acquired what we call the "finesse" of boxing, which comes only with years of experience. Singer has not yet had that experience. He still is a youngster, an undergraduate in the great school of boxing. We are two different types, to a certain degree, when it comes to fighting.

I was strictly a boxer in my early days, even though I had a knockout punch in either hand. Singer is more the fighter. He loves to fight. The boy can box and box beautifully, as I have pointed out, but he lacks that complete mastery of the situation at all times. That, of course, will come to him in time and when it does, he may make Benny Leonard look "second" to him, instead of being a "second Leonard."

However, Singer is probably better now than I was at a similar stage of my boxing career.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADDER, $15.64, $6.32, $4.80; FIRST VOTE, $4.32, $3.60; SKIFFY, $4.90.

LADDER moved fast in first flight, went into command saving ground, continued to show most speed throughout, was easily winner all the way, but was under urging through final furlong. FIRST VOTE held speed and forced the early pace for a time, but could not keep up with the winner, but held on well and kept his position safe. SKIFFY was never far off the pace to the stretch, where he tired in the drive, but proved a good starter and outlasted PLEASURE BOUND. Latter began fast, was close up before tiring and could not improve his position. TRYCOBEL raced evenly. JAY WALKER closed ground on outside impressively. REMEMBERED and WISE LEE began slowly, but were shuffled out of it early.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NYMPH KING, $5.34, $3.56, $2.92; KUKUI, $15.44, $8.26; THE OKAH, 110.24.

NYMPH KING began in a tangle, quickly worked his way into contention on outside, overhauled leaders reaching last eighth and drew away easily thereafter. KUKUI saved much ground on inside, set a fast pace to the stretch turn, where he tired and could not withstand the winner, but held on well. THE OKAH, also off slowly sained steadily on outside, closed a good sap and finished fast. TOP KICK closed an immense gap after being far back. BLUE CANOPY tired. BRAMSTAR suffered interference. MISS ROSEDALE stopped badly.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,500; allowances. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:27. Winner, E. B. McLean's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUTBURST, $5.92, $2.66, $2.58; AUNT DEB, $2.90, $2.44; STEP DANCE, $17.30.

OUTBURST, restrained off the pace to the stretch, came to outside for the final drive, and closing with a big rush, wore down leaders in final eighth and won going away. AUNT DEB showed high early speed, opened up long lead to the stretch, but tired badly in the late stages and could not withstand winner. STEP DANCE was a forward factor on the inside, close up and outgamed ALFAYE B in final drive. ALFAYE B. also had good early speed, raced in closest pursuit of AUNT DEB to eighth pole, but tired and stopped badly thereafter.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WILLIAM T., $21.94, $13.82, $10.08; HOT TODDY, $10.50, $6.60; BUDDY BAUER, $4.44.

WILLIAM T., outpaced the first six furlongs, but being reserved off the pace, came with a great rush in the final quarter, wearing down the leaders rapidly, but only managed to get up to head HOT TODDY in the final strides. HOT TODDY, under pressure from the start, forced his way through to the inside at the far turn and then overhauling PIGEON HOLE near the final furlong, took brief lead, but failed to withstand winner at the end. BUDDY BAUER raced prominently, came with a strong challenge in the final quarter and, finishing strongly, would have won at slightly longer distance. PIGEON HOLE had most early speed, but was used up setting pace to the stretch and faltered in the final furlong. CANAAN was never a factor, nor was MACEDON. LIVE OAK had early speed.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,800; allowances. The Winnetka. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:25. Off at 4:26. Winner, Hertz's gr. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VALENCIENNES, $5.50, $2.62, $2.30; BEAMING OVER, $2.72, $2.22; CHELYS, $2.52.

VALENCIENNES, restrained for first half mile, moved up on outside at far turn and, entering the stretch, easily headed CHELYS when called upon, drew out strongly and kept BEAMING OVER safe. BEAMING OVER, easily the best, suffered from poorly judged pace, was kept too far out of it and, closing fast, made a resolute bid on her own courage, but could not get to winner in late stages. CHELYS had the most speed for the first five furlongs, then tired. NAUGHTY EYE was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good for all but ZIDA. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:59. Winner, R. B. Clark's b. c. (3), by Whiskaway—Gympsy Blair. Trained by A. Baker. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47, 1:12 3-5, 1:38.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHISP, $83.56, $32.66, $20.04; BELLI CASUS, $8.48, $4.90; CORAL BEACH, $4.12.

WHISP, never far off pace, raced on outside of leaders and, making a strong challenge in the final eighth, disposed of GUIDE RIGHT, wore down and outgamed BELLI CASUS in hard final drive. BELLI CASUS, always close up in pursuit of GUIDE RIGHT and despite being crowded badly entering stretch by WHISP, took a brief lead in the final furlong, but tired near the end and failed to withstand the winner. CORAL BEACH was kept close up on the outside, came stronsly in stretch and was gradually wearing down BELLI CASUS and the winner near the end. ROLLING SEA had no mishaps and never threatened. HOWTIZ and BIG DANCE tiring badly after reaching stretch. ZIDA refused to break or leave with others when start came.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:31. Off at 5:32½. Winner, Lewis and Kemp's br. g. JACK HASKELL, going in best form, kept close up from the start, made his run entering the stretch, heading leaders on the outside around the turn and, drawing out strongly, won as rider pleased. FRIEDJOF NANSEN was outrun in early stages but rallied steadily to close up a big sap and finishing well, easily had the remainder. ROYAL MANAGER also closed a sap and, after reaching contention, held on gamely in the drive. PRINCESS EDITH raced close up and was a strong factor to the stretch, but weakened under pressure in final drive.

CONSIDINE-MANGAN REACH MIDDLE ATLATIC FINALS

Star Doubles Team Wins In 4 Sets

Rutley-Howerstein in Tie With Lotona-Shore at Dark.

FORCED to extend themselves after an unsteady start, Bob Considine and Tom Mangan, the favorites, steamed through to victory in the semifinals of the Middle Atlantic championship doubles tournament yesterday by defeating Bud Markey and Bill Seidell, third seeded team, 5—7, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3.

In safely passing the semifinal round, the champions of 1928 cleared the biggest obstacle in their path. Seidell and Markey were the only remaining seeded team and loomed as a dangerous combination following clever performances in the earlier rounds.

The final match will be played tomorrow. The other semifinal was halted by darkness yesterday after Owen Howerstein and Joe Rutley had split four sets with Frank Shore and Anthony Latona. The first-named pair won the first set, 6—4, and the fourth, 7—5, while the Shore-Latona due captured the second set, 6—2, and the third, 6—4. The fifth and deciding set of this struggle will be played today, starting at 5:15 p. m.

Favorites Beaten In First Set.

Considine and Mangan suffered a let-down in the first set after going into a 4—1 lead. They dropped the first game and then captured four in a row to appear well in command of things when suddenly the challengers unloosed a torrent of sizzling drives that swept them into the lead at 5—4.

Breaking through Seidell's service in the tenth game, Considine and Mangan drew level, but their opponents still were hitting on all cylinders and they took the next two games, piercing Mangan's delivery in the eleventh, to anex the set.

From that point on, however, Considine and Mangan made few mistakes and they never were behind again after tying the match by winning the second set with the loss of only two games, which Seidell and Markey won on service.

The third set was deadlocked at 2—2, but Mangan made good his service in the fifth game, and with his partner upset Markey's service in the sixth to go ahead, 4—2. This game was the longest of the entire match, 16 points being recorded before a decision was reached.

Markey's Service Is Upset.

Markey, who bore the brunt of the attack for his side, was unable to control his service in the fourth set, twice being upset. Also contributing to the downfall of the challengers was their lack of team work. Mangan's hard drives down the center often went for clean passes when Seidell and Markey bumped into each other.

The other seminal was a nip-and-tuck affair from start to finish, with the experience of Howenstein and Rutley being balanced by the speed and agility of the younger combination. Shore and Latona held the edge at one time, 2 to 1 in sets, but in the fourth chapter they lost steadiness and with it a fine chance of taking the match.

Howenstein and Rutley pulled ahead in the fourth set at 3—2, games going with service, and increased their lead by crashing Shore's service in the fifth game. Despite a rally in which the youthful pair won three games to tie, the veterans had enough in reserve to win the eleventh and twelfth games to take the set decision.

Fischer Held League Mark For Strikeouts With Bears

Special to The Washington Post.

NEWARK, N. J., July 14.—Charles William Fischer, who was sold today to the Washington Club, is better known as "Carl," the name he likes and uses in signing checks, came to Newark from Cambridge, of the Eastren Shore League, in 1925. He had reached his eighteenth birthday when he started to pitch professional baseball.

Newark farmed Fischer to Scranton, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, where he had little success. As left-handers in their early teens go, Fischer was no exception. He had plenty of hooks and a fast ball, but he lacked control. He joined the Newark Bears in spring training at Panama City, Fla., in 1926, but, lacking control, he was again shipped "down the river," this time to Johnstown, of the Middle Atlantic League. In the latter part of 1927 Fischer returned to the Bears and has been with them ever since.

Held League Record For Strikeouts.

He held the minor league record for strikeouts last year, having 167 to his credit. He led the Middle Atlantic League in strikeouts in 1927.

Walter Johnson knew he had a "find" in Fischer the minute he saw him serve in spring training while managing the Newark Club, at St. Augustine in 1928, the year the "big train" came mighty near seeing life's third strike go by him. Johnson was ill and could not give much attention to Fischer, but he was convinced that he was a major league pitcher.

George McBride, Walter's first lieutenant at the time, watched Fischer's every move and coached him along until he began to get results. Last year Fischer won eighteen games and lost thirteen. He ranked fourteenth among the league pitchers in earned runs, with a mark of 3.74. Fischer was born in Medina, N. Y., November 5, 1905. He stands 5 feet 11 inches and wegihs 158 pounds.

City Club Ring Team Transfers to Legion

The City Club boxing team, coached by Jack Whitely, has transferred its affiliation to the Victory Post, No. 4, American Legion, and carrying its new banner will participate in three or four matches during the next month.

On Friday night at Carlin's, Baltimore, Coach Whitely will send Doug Swetman, Harry Haas and Henry Irving into action. Irving is the District of Columbia middleweight champion.

A benefit boxing show, the proceeds from which will be turned over to the six baseball teams representing the American Legion in Washington, has been proposed by Coach Whitely. He has offered to match his proteges with the Penn A. C. mittmen of Philadelphia, Baltimore Y. M. H. A. or any other strong amateur ring outfit.

On July 25, the Victory Post boys will box on the program to be held by the American Legion of Rockville.

Myer made a brilliant catch of Koenig's pop foul opening the Tigers' sixth, racing almost to the stands in short right for the ball.

Cronin went to the edge of the grass almost behind Bluege for Uhle's hot grounder. The Nat shortstop made a great throw to first, but the runner beat it there by an eyelash. It went as a third consecutive bingle for Uhle.

Uhle pitched six consecutive strikes in fanning Spencer and Brown opening the "stretch" session.

Bluege went over in front of Cronin to make a nice one-hand grab of McManus' slow hopper for a force play at second in the seventh. He was in no position to shut off the run which scored at the time, however.

Uhle surely had Dave Harris' number. He fanned the Nat fly chaser for the third successive time in the eighth canto.

Shires missed getting a hit by inches in the ninth when pinch hitting for Spencer, with the bases loaded and none out. He looped one to short right on which Gehringer turned in an exceptional catch. Loepp followed, representing Brown at the swinging block, but he watched a third strike whiz past him.

CIRCLES LOSE IN VIRGINIA.

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., July 14.—The All Stars of Front Royal defeated the National Circle Athletic Club Team, of Washington, D. C., here Sunday by the score of 10 to 7. The fielding of Monague, the visiting left fielder, was a main feature. Duetterman relieved Haller in the box in the fifth inning. A large crowd witnessed the game. The line-up:

NATS OBTAIN FISCHER, OF NEWARK

does believe that the newcomer, who is scheduled to join the team late tonight, coming here from Toronto, where Newark is now playing, is likely to do his bit in a relief role.

Fischer, 25 years of age and a big, rangy left-hander, is said to have burning speed and, to a lesser degree, is being compared with Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove when the latter first came up to the big league.

When Johnson managed Newark in 1928, Fischer impressed him and his work has been watched carefully since then. Last year the Nats tried to land this youngster, but the Bears wanted several players and $25,000 in cash for him and the proposed deal was called off. Later the Giants obtained an option on Fischer's services, which called for an $80,000 payment, but this was never exercised.

"Fischer has a burning fast ball," said Johnson, "but he needs to pick up either a good curve or a slow one to make him a winning pitcher in our league, and we hope to teach him to throw one or the other. I'm not afraid of him failing if he can add just a little bit to his repertoire. Right now, I would not hesitate to call on him for a couple of innings as relief, for I know that he's got the speed to bust 'em by the batters for a short stretch, especially if it happened to be on a dark day. I'm not figuring on starting Carl for a long time yet, and, by that time, I hope we will have been able to teach him to toss something besides a fast one."

Fischer won his first six games with the Newark Club this season, and then the Bears collapsed and Fischer with them.

In getting Fischer, Johnson does not figure that he will miss Thomas. The latter came to the Washington Club via the waiver route from the Yankees about the middle of last season and did well. He participated in 27 games, all told, 22 with the Washington Club, and ended with seven victories as against ten defeats. Four of these losses were charged him as a Yankee. This year he has not done so well, failing both as a starter and as a relief man except twice in the latter capacity, when he did good work in two games in which the Nats beat New York and Philadelphia.

Thomas leaves tonight to join the Newark Team in Toronto, vowing that he will do so well there that he will be back in the big time next year. If he makes good and comes back to the Nats, they will have to purchase him, for no strings were kept on him.

Trainer Mike Martin evidently has won out in his argument with the physician here regarding the diagnosis of Heinie Manush's injury, the medicine man admitting tonight that there is a strained ligament in the fly chaser's leg. This means that the regular left fielder likely will not get back in the line-up for several more days, probably not until the final game of the next series with the Indians, if then. Johnson has decided that he will play safe in Manush's case and give him all the time he needs to recuperate for fear that his use too soon will throw him back for another week or two. With this in mind, Manush was told not to put on a uniform today and he will not be used even as a pinch hitter until he is just about ready.

Adolph Liska, who has been suffering from a sore salary wing for no apparent reason, today reports that his flipper is normal again, and Johnson is planning to use the young subway hurler in one of the games in Cleveland.

Bobby Burke has done so well against the Tigers in relief roles both Friday and Saturday that Manager Johnson is planning to let him start against the Jungle Cats in tomorrow's final game here. This will make Alvin Crowder and Fred Marberry available to perform Wednesday in the first of two double-headers booked with the Indians. Lefty Earl Whitehill is expected to oppose Burke in tomorrow's game.

ROBINS' LEAD BOOSTED TO 3 GAMES

Wright Hits Pair for Circuit in 12-8 Defeat of Pirates.

BROOKLYN, July 14 (A.P.).—With Glenn Wright pounding the ball to all corners of Ebbets' Field, the Brooklyn Robins defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 12 to 8, today and thereby increased their lead to three games in the National League pennant race.

Wright hit two home runs and a like number of singles in four trips to the plate, scoring four runs and driving in seven. The Robins' combined collection of hits off three Pirate hurlers totaled fifteen.

Dazzy Vance went the route for the league leaders and, although touched for fourteen safeties, including a home run by Traynor, managed to hold the Pirates at bay when they threatened to close in on the early lead pounded out by his team mates.

Gehrig Hits 2 Homers As Yankees Split Pair

Chicago, July 14 (A.P.).—Because Manager Bob Shawkey was able to find a pitcher that could go the route, New York and Chicago broke even in today's double-header, the White Sox taking the weird opener, 10 to 9, and the Yankees nightcap, 7-2. Charles Ruffing, the Boston Red Sox castoff, was the Yankee pitcher to go nine innings, holding the Sox to nine scattered hits in the second contest. Lou Gehrig connected with his second home run of the day to aid Ruffing.

The first game produced nearly every type of baseball. Each team made four errors, the Sox tied the American League double-play record with five, left fourteen men stranded on the bases and finally won out in the last half of the ninth when Lazzeri juggled Watwood's hit, which went for a single, and Reynolds slid across the plate with the winning run. Pat Caraway got credit for the victory, although Red Faber and Hal McKain did most of the work on the mound.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me when to plant balsam apple seed. I planted some in the open ground in March, and so far it has not germinated. MRS. F. C.

You no doubt planted the seed too early. You could have started the seed in the house in March. In the open the ground is apt to be too cold. May is the time to start seed in the open.

Please tell me how to care for a bleeding heart. I have had several slips sent to me from up-State, but they rarely grow. Please tell me how to water them. M. E. F.

As soon as the flowers of the bleeding heart (dicentra) have finished blooming the foliage dies down. The plant does well in sun or shade, although it is seemingly more at home in the shade. It demands a rich, light soil and must be watered every day. Bleeding heart may be propagated from seed, division of the root or from young shoots which start from the soil in early spring. Better, in the future, set out roots of established plants, sow seed or plant young shoots in the spring, for you are not likely to succeed with cuttings started late in the season.

Will you please tell me how to raise young rhododendron and azalea plants from cuttings. My several varieties are very old and can not be moved, as they are like young trees. I understand the soil requirements of these shrubs. I am looking to the future when these bushes will have outlived their usefulness. Can you tell me if the yellow Chinese lily is hardy in this vicinity? I have a lot of bulbs sent to me which are perfectly hardy in their native home. Do they require much sun?

ELISABETH W.

Native rhododendrons and azaleas may be grown from seed, but the colored hybrid rhododendrons can not be depended upon to come true from seed and are, therefore, propagated by grafting on seedling rhododendrons, grown especially for the purpose. The propagation of both these shrubs requires experience, and the amateur is not likely to meet with success. I am so sorry, but I do not know the yellow Chinese lily by that name.

Please tell me how to make a cutting from a Christmas cactus. Also, something about the care of an established plant of this variety.

O. NADA R.

The Christmas cactus may be propagated from seed or from a cutting. Late May and June is the time to start cuttings, because the wounds will then heal well and quickly. Just break off a piece of the plant and, since the tissues are so watery, see that callus is formed before the cutting is planted. Lay it on a shelf in some sunny location where there is a good circulation of air for a few days. If sowing seed, use well-drained soil and handle it like any other seed. After germination they will require less water than any other seedlings. The Christmas cactus requires a soil made of equal parts of fibrous loam, leafmold and sand, with some finely broken charcoal for drainage. This plant, when established, requires a great deal of sun, heat, fresh air and moisture.

My peonies and roses of Sharon are covered with black specks. Please tell me what to use to get rid of this scale, if that is what it is.

HARRIET A. C.

Better spray these shrubs with Bordeaux mixture.

Please tell me how to get rid of ants in my grass plot. I do not want to use carbon bisulphate.

ALICE J.

If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you name of a proprietary preparation, which, if used as directed, will rid a lawn of these insects.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed stamped envelope is supplied.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

Care of the Milk in the Home.
(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Milk must be given proper care after it is delivered. Milk frequently becomes spoiled by being allowed to stand in the sun on the door step or in a warm kitchen. It should be placed immediately in the ice box, where the temperature should be 50 degrees F. If ice is not available milk can be kept at this temperature by using an iceless refrigerator or standing the bottle in spring water.

A spring house or well may be used to refrigerate milk if the water is cold enough. The covered pail should be placed in the well so that the water comes up nearly to the cover. In this way the contents of the pail may be kept as cold as the water outside of the pail. In cool climates bottles may be placed in a pan of water in an open window on the cool side of the house.

It is best to keep milk until used in the bottle in which it comes. If this can not be done the milk should be transferred to a clean sterilized Mason jar and kept tightly covered. The cover or cap of the milk bottle should be wiped off so that no dust may fall on the milk when the cap is removed and before pouring out the milk the edge of the bottle or jar should be wiped off with a clean dampened cloth. All bottles, utensils and the ice box itself must be kept scrupulously clean. Milk containers must not be used for any other contents.

A separate ice box for the baby's milk is desirable if possible. If the family ice box is used it is best to keep the baby's bottles in a covered pail which should be large enough to hold all the bottles for 24 hours.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Jagged effects on a printed marquisette afternoon or tea gown, in two shades of green. It has an interesting sleeve. (Courtesy of Ardanse, Paris.)

Paris, July 14.

ISN'T it pleasant to look about one at the tennis matches, here and there by the courts and over the green lawns that border them, and see what delightful lines this year's tennis and sports dresses have taken on? Remember the straight and short and sleeveless variety that we wore only a year ago? We thought nothing could surpass it for sportswear perfection then!

But isn't that a hint of elegance I see over by a shady tree? That flared skirt, that deft incrustation of the bodice and hipline, that skirt length of elegance that does not confine, the comfort of a sleeveless blouse • • • nothing lost and so much gained, it seems to me.

• • • •

I saw such a b-e-e-e-eautiful blond the other day wearing just exactly the wrong color! At first it broke my heart all in little pieces, but then I thought of the color information which I had assembled for you last year and decided it wouldn't be amiss to make it an extra leaflet this week for just such be-e-e-e-eautiful blonds and "redheads" and "white-haired types as that girl who broke my heart. If you're one of these types and don't know • • • about colors, send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post right away!

• • • •

Ho-hum, Ardanse is so lovely • • • no, I mean, her dresses are so lovely! She makes everything, of course, but for soft, summery, gracious afternoon things and evening things that make a plain woman look lovely and a lovely woman look lovelier, she is it. 'Course she is so lovely herself, but I'm 'sposed to write about fashions • • • so look at the printed marquisette gown in its two shades of cool, lovely green, that I sketched for you today. Isn't it?

A hunk of sandpaper, some paints, some fun, a little elbow work, and your house is new inside and out for the winter! You have no idea how many high-priced interior decorators tricks we have managed to track to earth and tell you about in a leaflet! A stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and you can turn interior decorator your own self!

• • • •

Speaking of summer sun and loveliness, how's that for a hat, sketched up in the corner? Three shades of green, and a soft, flattering little bow on the under brim right next to the face.

• • • •

Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post will always prove of interest to you.

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF July 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to noon, 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m; and 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 5:30 a. m. to 7 a. m and 3 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

You will harvest in future days the fruit of your sowing on this date. Fate will give you a guiding hand, if you accept it, but there will be a war between self-desire and the dictates of your conscience. Look ahead before you act.

Children born on this July 15 will have happy-go-lucky dispositions, and will never desire to discard their rose-colored glasses. They should be carefully prepared for life within the home and schoolroom, or they will be heart brokenly disillusioned and lose confidence in the world and its people. They will be thoroughly good, but decided dreamers.

Life is not going to dry-nurse and treat you like a helpless babe—it is going to test and try you severely. You are going to have to fight for most of your heart's desires, but you are fortunately made of fighting stuff. You will neither try to evade your battles nor will you weakly surrender to difficulties, instead of overcoming them. Your life will be full of changes and surprise packets are always around the corner—sometimes nice ones, and sometimes bad ones, but you open both fearlessly. You do not resist change, however, you loathe ruts. You love fresh experiences, and you rush into them with enthusiasm. You are going to have many vivid experiences, but they will be character builders, and not destroyers in your case. You will witness good and evil, but you will remain clean and morally good.

You do not allow yourself the pleasure of self-pity, for you usually acknowledge that the cause of most of your troubles is within yourself. You never blame poor old Circumstances. You have a great love of study, and you will probably have more ability than you will have an opportunity to use profitably—you may be forced to accept subordinate positions, but ones of trust and importance. You are a good, practical worker, and an industrious being, seldom found with idle hands.

Successful people born July 15:

Thomas C. Platt, senator.

William Winter, author and journalist.

Thomas Fell, educator; president of St. John's College, Annapolis, Md.

Bernard Michael Kaplan, rabbi.

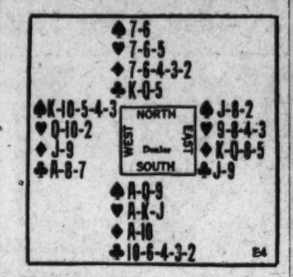
Goofus Instruction

Suppose some day your Mother said:
"This evening 'fore we go to bed
I want to catch a Goofus Tripe!"
Now could you tell one from a Snipe?
You couldn't—well, I'll tell you how:
A Tripe can never learn to bow
While Snipes find bowing is a pipe—
So if it bows it's not a Tripe!

WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE DONE BETTER?



When the above hand was played (score love-all, rubber game), South bid one No Trump and obtained the contract, the game being Auction Bridge. If it had been Contract, South would have bid two No Trumps on his 19-count and four suits stopped (one distantly); and North, with the minimum justification (a King and Queen), would have jumped to three.

In the play, West opened with a Spade which South won with the Queen. South then led a Club and won with the Queen in dummy. He then led a Heart and finessed in closed hand. West's Queen winning. West led the King of Spades (King and Ten having become touching cards); South held up once but had to win with his Ace of Spades on the next trick (the third round of Spades). Then South led a second Club, West won and cashed his two established Spades; so East and West saved game, taking in all three Spades, one Heart and one Club.

On the next deal West had a whale; he bid for a slam and made it. Of course that ended the rubber; and South, when asked by an outsider whether he had won, offered as his alibi that "no man could win with such bad cards and bad breaks." Would you have won that rubber?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

On trick 3 Declarer should not have finessed the Heart. With the Ace of Clubs almost surely in the West hand, game and rubber could be won without a Heart finesse by a second lead of Clubs through West's Ace, before West's Spades were established—The Heart finesse presented an even chance of taking an extra trick, but was a very foolish play as it risked game merely for the reward of a trick immaterial.

Work, the world's preeminent authority on Bridge and chairman of the rules committee of the American Bridge League. This booklet will decide all the moot points and many important conventions so frequently discussed at Bridge parties. It is yours with the compliments of The Washington Post upon request accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed, return envelope. Address Milton C. Work in care of The Washington Post.

Man Saved Parking Fine By Coming Fatherhood

Anticipation of a "blessed event" is an acceptable excuse for a traffic indiscretion such as illegal parking, Judge Gus Schuldt ruled yesterday in the case of Attorney Mark B. Friedlander, 3525 Davenport street northwest. Asked if he had anything to say in his defense, Mr. Friedlander told the court that he had a reason but no excuse for illegal parking. "You see, my wife was expecting a baby," he said.

"That could certainly be called an emergency," the Judge replied. 'I congratulate you and release you on your personal bond."

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

Gloth Certain Service Man, Held Since June 5, Did Not Kill Woman.

ARMY DISCIPLINE WILL DECIDE ULTIMATE FATE

Capt. Bolling Will Lay Case Before Commander of Corps Area Today.

The ultimate fate of Private Howard L. Brewster, released yesterday from the Arlington County Jail, where he had been held since June 5, when he "confessed" to the murder of Mary E. Baker, now rests with the commander in chief of the Third Corps Area of the Army, and probably will be decided today.

Brewster was freed yesterday on order of Commonwealth's Attorney W. G. Gloth and, accompanied by Capt. A. R. Bolling, commander of Headquarters Company, returned to the barracks at Eighteenth and C streets northwest. Gloth said the release was unconditional so far as his jurisdiction was concerned.

Three Courses Possible.

Capt. Bolling was unable to communicate with the commander in chief of the Third Corps Area, but plans to lay the case before him early today, he said. He explained that there are three possible courses: The affair may be dropped entirely and Brewster continued as a private in the Army; he may be tried by a court-martial on the charge of bringing discredit upon the service; or he may be brought before the eligibility board on charges of having traits and habits which unfit him to continue in the service.

No recommendations of any sort for disposition of Brewster's case will be made to the commander in chief, Capt. Bolling stated, and any further action can come only from headquarters at Baltimore. So far as Capt. Bolling is concerned, unless or until further orders are received, Brewster is exonerated.

Absolved by Gloth.

Brewster achieved notoriety when he insisted that he had slain Mary E. Baker, Navy Department employe, whoes body was found in a culvert near Arlington National Cemetery on April 12. He was examined as to his sanity by a special board, and upon being adjudged responsible for his actions was turned over to the Arlington County authorities.

A cheeck of his story convinced the county officials that he had not committed the murder, and Gloth, upon releasing Brewster yesterday, said, "I know he did not commit the crime."

Police now are concentrating upon a search for Herman H. Barrere, itinerant painter, who has been reported as seen in various widely scattered points since he disappeared shortly after the slaying.

Court of Claims Hears 412 Cases

$210,004,807 Involved in Suits Disposed Of in Session.

The United States Court of Claims has adjourned for the summer after disposing of $210,004,807.27 in suits since it convened last fall. At the beginning of the term 1,981 cases were pending involving $2,152,713,149, and there have been filed since 351 cases involving $1,117,745,612. The sum disposed of was represented by 412 cases, leaving 1,920 cases involving $3,060,453,954 still pending on the dockets.

Many important Government contract cases and actions for tax refunds were among the cases disposed of, including those involving questions of automobile accessories, suits for taking land for hospitals, cantonments, proving grounds and naval bases at Aberdeen, Md.; Cape May, N. J., and elsewhere; extra pay for aviation services; Army and Navy pay cases; rail transportation of troops, property and supplies, and patent cases of all kinds.

The court has made a special effort to dispose of tax refund cases immediately, and from time to time has established special calendars for these cases to accelerate their disposition, saving the Government hundreds of thousands of dollars in interest that would have accrued.

Man Bites Wife's Leg; Charged With Assault

During a family quarrel last night at 1829 Ledroit court northwest, Michael Thomas, 38 years old, colored, bit his wife so severely on the left leg that she required hospital treatment.

Woman and Man Held In Shooting, Stabbing

Detective Sergts. J. E. Flaherty and W. T. DuBusky cleaned up two cases in short order last night when they arrested a Negro for seriously shooting a man, and a few minutes later arrested a colored woman for stabbing another colored woman.

Israel Lindsay, 40 years old, of L street near First street northwest, is alleged to have shot Walter Johnson, Negro, of Third street near C street southwest, twice. The wounds are expected to prove fatal. Louise Mary Bowers, colored, of P street near Tenth street northwest, is said to have stabbed Josephine Robinson, also colored, of R street near Fourth street northwest, and was arrested, charged with assault.

15 WASHINGTON MEN SERVE IN BLUE ARMY

Quantico Marine Reservists to March in Review With Brigade.

DANCE SET FOR FRIDAY

Fifteen Washington men are officers of the Blue army, defending Maryland farms and the District from the attacks of the Red forces in the mimic war raging around Washington. The officers range in rank from first lieutenant to colonel.

At Quantico, Va., where the Twentieth Marines Reserve Regiment is training, the Reserve boys went into their second week with the regiment split into the two battalions, one holding battalion drill and the other indulging in target practice. On Thursday, when both units have had their range practice, they will shoot for the record.

Tomorrow at 3:30 o'clock the entire brigade, including both Reservists and Regulars, will be reviewed. This is the first time the C. M. T. C. youths have had to stack up against the Regulars, but they seem confident they will be able to make a creditable showing.

The dance for the men at Quantico, which was to have been held last Friday, was postponed until next Friday. The arrangements made for the affair last week will be the same. Music will be furnished by an orchestra recruited from the Twentieth and led by Arthur Harper, bandmaster. Busses to carry all friends of the regiment, who are invited, will leave from in front of the Postoffice Building, at Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue, between 7 o'clock and 7:30.

Now that the officers at Fort Meade, Md., are getting to know one another, many are found to have had interesting careers. An officer who speaks Zulu Swahili, three foreign-born officers, a former lieutenant governor of Bennsylvania, this year's Republican candidate for lieutenant governor of the Keystone State, and an officer who was a National Guard bugler for ten years, before he was 16 years old, are among them.

Also included are a number of men who served in France during the World War. Some of them were wounded, one by a bomb, one by a hand-grenade and several by machine gun bullets. Veterans of the Spanish War and of the border campaigns in Mexico are also with the Reserves.

Mrs. Florence Dorsey Wheat, widow of Clarence Wheat, died yesterday morning at her home, 526 Queen street, after a long illness, having been practically an invalid since breaking her hip two years ago. She was a daughter of the late Henry Carter and Mary Catherine Dorsey, and is survived by a sister, Mrs. James A. Long, and a niece, Miss Florence A. Long.

It is expected that an unusually large number of bids will be presented, more than 30 contractors having paid the $25 fee for copies of the plans and specifications from which bids are figured.

It is not certain that the contract will be awarded at this meting, however, as the commissioners are anxious to ascertain the financial status and dependability of the contractor to whom the contract is awarded. They have reserved the right to refuse to consider any and all bids.

Members of the general courthouse building committee and all subcommittees have been invited to sit with the commissioners in the opening of the bids. Counsel to the county commissoners, Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, also will be present.

The commissioners today will open bids on the Poolesville-Sycamore Landing road, which is to be constructed this summer. The cost of constructing the road will be charged against the Poolesville district.

An additional fine of $50 or 50 days in the county jail was imposed on a charge of exceeding the 40-mile speed limit.

Spottsylvania Fire Does $30,000 Harm

Historic Spottswood Inn Is Saved; Store and Home of Justice Burn.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 14.—Fire of unknown origin early today swept through the little village of Spottsylvania Courthouse, 10 miles from here and destroyed three of its principal buildings.

Starting in the general merchandise store of George W. Perry & Son, the blaze consumed the frame buildings together with practically all of the contents, ignited the law offices of Trial Justice E. R. Carner, which was burned to the ground, and then spread to the home and office of Commonwealth's Attorney S. P. Powell which was likewise destroyed. Most of the furniture and effects of the Powell home were saved but the contents of Carner's law office were consumed.

The historic Spottswood Inn was ignited several times but in each instance the blaze was extinguished before serious damage was done. The loss is estimated at upwards of $30,000, partially covered by insurance. Commonwealth's Attorney S. P. Powell was overcome by smoke and was unconscious when dragged from the building just before the structure collapsed.

Youth Quits Court To See Ill Mother

Richmond Boy, Given Ten Years, Climbs Through Transom to Flee.

Richmond, Va., July 14 (A.P.).—Clinton Kirby, 19, wanted to go home to see his mother who was sick in bed. He couldn't—legally—because this morning he was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary on three charges of housebreaking. But Clinton had his own way about it. He climbed through the transom in the prisoners' room at Hustings Court, dashed home and comforted his parent.

He didn't stay long, because by the time officers had started their search he had returned to the court to await transfer to the State prison.

Kirby was charged in three indictments with having taken property and currency to a total value of $28.25 by the burglary route. He entered pleas of guilty to all three in court today. Officers said he had confessed to more than a dozen robberies in the city. He owned up, officers said, to the dozen other housebreaking cases of which he was guilty and took the officers around to each place to demonstrate how the jobs were done.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

"WHAT an eyeful that young lady makes," I remarked as Luella's giddy friend sashayed down the walk toward the car, flicking cigarette ashes in her trail.

"An eyeful is right," said Luella, "but that's about all she could fill—an eye."

For heaven's sake! I hope Luella isn't getting catty. Certainly the young lady is beautiful—with that fragrant beauty of youth, the beauty that has no other function in the world than to make life worth living; even just to look at it. So I told Luella this.

"Well," she said, "you oughta spend about an hour with her and plumb the depths of her brain——"

"The depths of her mind——?"

"I take that back," smiled Luella.

"How old is this pal of yours?"

"Off hand, I should say 20——"

"If that's so, you wouldn't expect her to have all the wisdom and experience of an elder woman, would you?"

* * * *

LUELLA looked me full in the eye: "Say," she flashed, "are you insinuating that I'm an old woman——?"

Before I knew it the battle was on—and there was I getting slammed all over the lot for mentioning age. That seems to be the touchy subject these days.

"What difference does it make," I asked, "how old you are?" In my eyes you will always be young, and beautiful, and fair."

It had the desired effect.

"Do you mean that?" she cooed.

"Do I mean it? Do you think I'd say it if I didn't mean it? Luella!"

Her face wreathed in smiles, she came over and put her arm on my shoulder: "You old dear——"

'Twas my turn: "Listen, young lady! Don't start to 'old dear' me. That's another thing I don't like."

She stomped her foot: "So! You, too, are afraid of age——?"

"Well, it isn't exactly age I'm afraid of, but I don't want-a be put out of the picture."

"What if I told you that in my eyes," she said, "you will always be a boy——"

* * * *

IN that case, of course, let the world roll on—for life, after all, is like that the real appeal is to the eye, and I told her so.

"Are you thinking of my girl friend, or of me?"

What a thought: "How could I think of anybody while I have you?" I asked, kissing her, and the argument was all off. Life, and love, and lovliness. What a trio!

MARYLAND TO OPEN FIREMAN'S COLLEGE

First Class at U. of M. Is to Hold Its Sessions From Sept. 2 to 6.

WILL COVER FOUR YEARS

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, July 14.—The first class of the newly founded Maryland State Fire College will be held at the University of Maryland from September 2 to 6, it was announced today by Jesse A. Fisher, the representative of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association, to a committee in charge of organizing the new institution for firemen.

"We expect 132 students for the first class," Mr. Fisher, who also is fire marshal of the Annapolis department and president of the Anne Arundel County Firemen's Association, said. "That will include at least one man from every company in the State. Through cooperation of Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland, it has been possible to begin the course this year rather than wait for legislative action.

Must Study Four Years.

"Members taking the course will be obligated to study four days each year for four consecutive years in order to obtain a certificate of graduation, which will only be granted after they have shown themselves able to pass extensive examinations. They will then be qualified to meet any fire situation which may arise and will improve the standing of the State fire departments considerably.

"The movement is State-wide. The committee in charge, consisting of Dr. Pearson, Dean A. N. Johnson of the College of Engineering of the University of Maryland, Walter Hough, president of the Baltimore City Safety Council; H. H. Mace, safety engineer of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad; Hazleton A. Joyce, jr., deputy insurance commissioner of Maryland, and Mr. Fisher.

"The organizers at first hesitated over the cost of their fire college, but Dr. Pearson solved the problem by offering a small section of one of the dormitories at College Park, early in September. The only cost now will be for food and transportation, which it is estimated will average about $10 per man for the 4-days' course.

Instructors Work Free.

"All the instructors will work free. Dean Johnson probably will be head of the college. It is understood that every company will have a representative at the college. In Annapolis the city probably will pay the way of a volunteer from each of the three companies.

"Firemen generally are pleased with the plan. It will be a main topic when the executive committee of the Maryland State Fireman's Association meets in Ocean City, July 20.

BOMB DEFENDANTS TO BE TRANSFERRED

FAMILIES ARE CLOSER

The Brady brothers, who are awaiting trial in connection with the New Year's Day bombing at Seat Pleasant, Md., in the county jail at Rockville, Md., will be transferred to the Prince Georges County jail at Upper Marlboro, it was announced by Judge Robert B. Peter yesterday.

Counsel for the brothers, Lawrence Leroy Bray, Washington automobile mechanic, and Herman Brady, both of whom were indicted for murder by the Prince Georges County grand jury, asked July 8 that the brothers be returned to the Marlboro jail while awaiting trial in order that they might be closer to their families. The brothers were removed to Rockville for trial when defense counsel claimed that they could not receive a fair trial in Prince Georges County. A jury in circuit court at Rockville disagreed at the first trial of Lawrence Brady and he is awaiting a second trial.

Judge Peter conferred with his associates, Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Judge John S. Newman, before granting the request. The order permitting the return to the Marlboro jail was signed by all three judges. The order specifically states that the Montgomery County court does not relinquish jurisdiction, but is merely releasing the prisoners into the custody of Sheriff Charles S. Early, of Prince Georges pending the appointment of a trial date, at which time, or at any time it is ordered by the court, they are to be returned to the jail at Rockville.

Sheriff Early had not been notified of the order yesterday, but expects to receive word this morning. He will go to Rockville immediately and bring the brothers to Marlboro, he said.

The families of the two men live close to Upper Marlboro and the trip to Rockville is a hardship for them, the defense counsel, M. Hampton Magruder, State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer and Frank Hall, contended in asking for the transfer. State's Attorney J. Frank Parran assented to the move.
